

British Divulge Radio Device Credited With Repelling Invasion

'Mystery Rays' Patrol Skies 24 Hours a Day

Principle No Secret; Waves Seen as Peacetime Aid.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. LONDON, June 18.—(Wednesday)—Britain today officially divulged her best-kept secret of the war with the announcement that radio location—a scientific device which warns of approaching planes miles away—is her great mystery defense against German raiders.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Philip Jourbert, who described how the device performs, said that for security reasons the operational methods of the weapon still were a close secret but that radio location, which started an entirely new military art, works this way: Electric waves not affected by darkness and fog are sent out. These become distant outposts constantly "manned" by wireless electronic watchmen which send back a signal of any object coming into its path. It keeps a 24-hour watch.

Credited With Victory. The device was given much credit for winning the Battle of Britain last fall. Sorely overworked RAF fighters, through radio location, were relieved of keeping up standing patrols and relied on the weapon to tell them in plenty of time when the raiders were coming and from what direction.

It was said that radio location has had a tremendous influence on air, military and naval strategy.

The device was described as a complicated apparatus for which it took longer to train a man to service than it did to make.

It had been kept so secret that in the military service it had been "referred to by three letters only, and even these could not be whispered outside," the Air Ministry said.

Known Since 1935. Last fall Sir Philip had told Britons that the government was "doing its damndest to find an answer" to the problem of Nazi night raiders.

Radio location was a development known to radio science since 1935, Sir Philip made plain today. The idea, he said, has been "brought to manhood in secret and has made a laboratory trick into an instrument of practical warfare."

Asked whether the Germans also were using the device, he said the knowledge embodied in it was at the disposal of scientists in any country and it was reasonable to believe the Nazis were aware of it, but Britain has no evidence thus far that Germany is using a similar instrument.

Doubles Efficiency. Sir Philip said radio location doubled the efficiency of observer corps and that its peace-time development after the war would greatly add to the safety of flying.

"There's no doubt in my mind that there's a great future in radio location—anyone can have a real career in it."

In this connection Lord Beaverbrook, minister of state, in a broadcast to the United States early today, appealed for volunteer technicians to help improve, repair and maintain the instruments.

He gave no details of its working, nor did Major Clement R. Attlee, the lord privy seal, who earlier told the house of commons that it is "ingenious."

CYCLORAMA ARTIST—In his favorite pose with hold-dered cigaret and white cap, George Peter, one of the six artists who painted the internationally famous "Battle of Atlanta," is seen as he arrived here last night to see once more the painting he hasn't seen in 55 years.

Cyclorama Artist Comes Here To See Famous Painting Again

George Peter, 81, To Fulfill 55-Year-Old Ambition Today When He Views Panorama He, as a Youth, Helped Create.

By FRANK DRAKE.

The last surviving artist who helped paint the world-famous panorama of the "Battle of Atlanta," known as the Cyclorama, arrived in Atlanta last night to fulfill a burning ambition of 55 years to see once again the great work on which he labored long hours.

Today that artist, 81-year-old George Peter, of Milwaukee, will stand again before the canvass on which he played his brush in 1886 in Indianapolis—and his desire of a lifetime will be satisfied.

Accompanied by his son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Peter, of New York, Peter will remain here only one day, returning to Milwaukee as soon as he has looked his fill at the magnificent painting of a whole battlefield in action.

Important historical information concerning the Cyclorama will be imparted to Atlanta officials by the Milwaukee artist, who helped paint it. He knows which artist painted which part, which figure, and still in his memory lingers the style of each of the five German painters who worked with him.

He has come here largely through the invitation of S. J. Pridden, of 359 Hill street, S. E., who wrote Peter last year urging him to visit the painting if he possibly could.

A vital personality is that of the artist, a native of Vienna and a graduate of the Imperial Art School there. Eighty-one years old, he is as alive as a high-tension wire and intensely interested in everything. A 400-mile journey yesterday didn't phase him.

He was painting in Munich when, as a young man, he was brought here to do the horses and animal figures in six tremendous large panoramas of battles between

U. S. Orders All Border Exits Closed To Prevent Flight Of 330,000 German Nationals

Nazi Consulate Closing Brings Acrid Protest

Action Called Despotism; Reprisal Seen for Freezing Funds.

BERLIN, June 17.—(AP)—The German government has "protested most sharply" against the United States' order of yesterday closing German consulates, it was officially announced tonight.

Germany rejects charges that the consulates and other German organizations engaged in "inadmissible activities" as "unfounded and despotism," the statement said.

The United States action was termed "contrary to agreement."

No Hint of Reprisal. There was no hint of possible German reprisal measures. Earlier, a Nazi spokesman announced his government would take the "necessary measures" against assets of American citizens in the Reich because of what he called a long series of "provocative acts."

This specific reaction to President Roosevelt's order freezing German funds in the United States was made against a background of consistent earlier statements that Germany "refused" to be provoked.

Cannot Be Confirmed.

The whole subject was regarded as too important for casual comment. But one carefully weighted remark from a source of high responsibility was that the old attitude that the United States couldn't provoke Germany "cannot be confirmed today."

In the announcement concerning counter measures to the freezing of German assets, there was no concrete indication of what these measures would be.

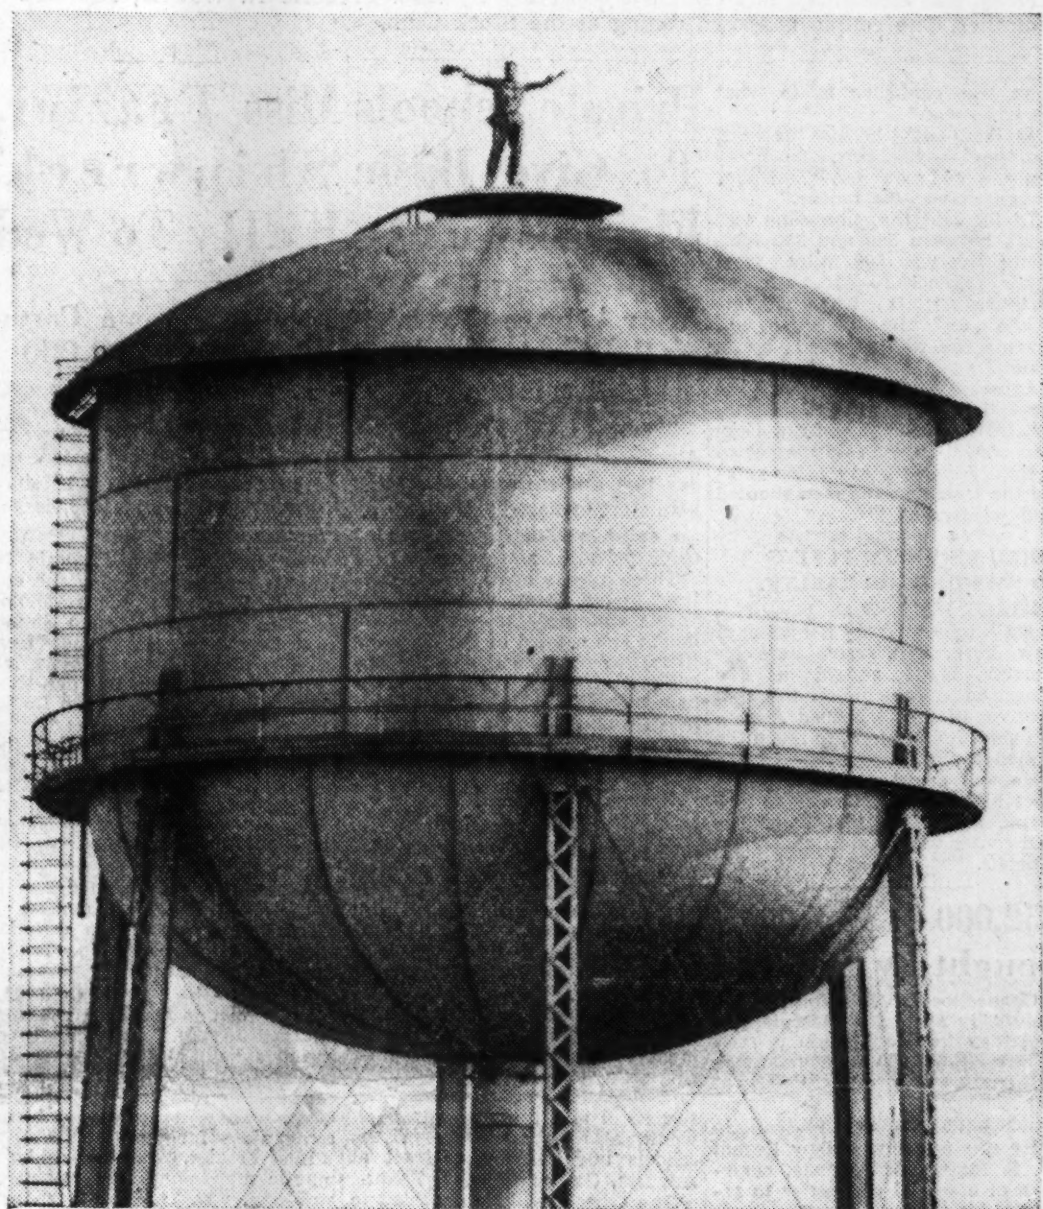

It was pointed out in American circles that a mere tit for tat, such as freezing American assets in the Reich, would have comparatively little effect on American interests. For years American assets here have been subject to such strict control that to a degree they already are frozen.

ITALIAN KING SIGNS FUND-FREEZING ORDER.

ROME, June 17.—(AP)—King Vittorio Emmanuel signed tonight a decree law freezing American credits, investments and property in Italy as a reprisal to a similar move by President Roosevelt in what Italians call economic warfare preliminary to United States entry into the war itself.

American investments in Italy, estimated by the authoritative Fascist Editor Virginio Gayda at $145,000,000, must be registered HIGH CLIMBER—Robert Cales—a "Georgia boy"—was put to bed without any supper last night because he had been a bad boy. Robert perched for several hours atop the high water tower inside the penitentiary yard and regaled crowds on a nearby street with his antics. Cales climbed down about 8 o'clock last night. Prison officials told him he was too late for any supper.

U.S. Prisoner Madison County Girl, 14, Held In Rifle-Slaying of Her Mother

Pauline Hill Jailed at Danielsville After Parent Is Found Shot in Back; Father Says 'I'm More To Blame Than Anybody.'

By WILLARD COPE.

DANIELSVILLE, Ga., June 17.—A stoical little girl in a rumpled print dress—sitting alone in the small jail here while at peaceful Salem church they buried the mother she slew yesterday afternoon—gave Georgia for the third time in almost as many weeks a poignant problem with none to answer forthrightly, "Why?"

"She's intelligent and can write well," said Solicitor General R. Howard Gordon, of his prisoner, 14-year-old Pauline Hill, a brown-eyed, black-haired silent product of Harrison's district in the extreme northeast corner of Madison county. "She doesn't show any feeling. I guess she'll get life."

Sheriff Ralph Baird, with one lightning flash of quotation, gave a deeper insight.

"The girl's father, Floyd Hill," said the sheriff, "told me: 'I guess I'm more responsible for this than anybody.'"

Hill, according to the sheriff, solicitor and Officer E. L. McCann, of Danielsville, frequently had come up against the law on liquor charges. Moreover, they said, the Hill family connection had engaged in feuds with members of the Freeman family, neighbors across the Franklin Crippled Inmate Misses Supper in Eight-Hour Adventure.

An eight-hour sit-down strike atop an 80-foot water tower at the federal penitentiary, staged by a crippled federal prisoner, was ended at 8:25 o'clock last night when Robert Cales, 30, serving an 18-month sentence for forgery, crawled down the ladder and announced, "I'm glad to be back."

His little adventure within the high walls of the huge prison had attracted thousands of spectators who jammed McDonough boulevard to watch him disrobe, even to taking off his wooden leg and beating the metal water tank with it.

Warden Joseph Sanford said Cales would "be segregated" as punishment for his misbehavior. Though spectators thought a prison guard had taken the prisoner on the water tower his dinner at 8 o'clock last night, the warden said differently. Cales had no dinner at all last night. He came down too late.

He had rechecked himself and replaced his detachable wooden leg when he got back to earth.

At intervals during the afternoon, Cales would shout to passers-by who lined the iron fence along McDonough boulevard, "I am an old Georgia boy," he would say. Then, giving the telephone number of a downtown hotel, he would ask onlookers to call the number and "get in touch with Ruby."

Prison officials said that Cales had been under observation for several months. His 18-month sentence expires the middle of August. If he had earned any good behavior time he would have been released the first of May.

Cales forged the name of Joseph S. Murrance to a $10 money order cashed on December 12, 1939. Arrested by postal inspectors, he pleaded guilty and was sentenced in the Atlanta division of the federal district court on February 19, 1940.

Stripping himself to his underwear about 1 o'clock he remained unclad until the heat caused him to dress again. Later he undressed a second time, shouting and pounding as he did so.

America Ready To Put Guns on Merchantmen

Roosevelt Says Plans Held by Navy Since Former War.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—United States border patrols and customs men were ordered tonight to prevent any of the 330,000 German nationals in the United States from leaving the country "pending further instructions."

The official explanation given was that the government wanted to assure compliance with President Roosevelt's order "freezing" foreign funds in the United States and forbidding their removal without permission.

However, other reasons were hinted at. One official pointed out that the restrictions would give the government an opportunity to control the movement of Germans into Mexico and South America, where there is alleged to have been considerable subversive activity on behalf of the Axis countries.

There was known also to be some concern among officials concerning the possibility of reprisals abroad for recent United States steps affecting Germany. Some government men expressed belief it would be well to establish a "status quo" concerning German nationals here until the situation is clarified.

Effect of Order.

It was pointed out also that the order would have the effect of controlling the departure of German nationals while congress considers pending legislation which would give President Roosevelt power to control departures from the United States as well as entries. These powers would be identical with the authority provided during the World War by an act of May 22, 1918.

The order went forward through the customs and immigration services. They were told to "cover all possible means of departure, including vessels, trains, buses, airplane and international border roads so that no German national may leave the country without having fully complied with the executive order and the regulations." (The credits freezing order was referred to.)

While the order technically affects 330,000 Germans, it was plain that the great majority of these have no intention of leaving the country. About 60 per cent of them have applied for American citizenship.

German consuls and employees of three alleged propaganda agencies were ordered yesterday to leave the country by July 10. While today's order, issued by the Justice and Treasury Departments, was in seeming contradiction it was expected that the consuls, at least would be permitted to depart when the government made sure that they were not carrying away assets in violation of the freezing order.

President Roosevelt said today the German consuls were ordered

'Kiwanis Committee Approves Army Plan To Sponsor Air Cadet Training Program

Convention Will Consider Measure at Today's Session.

By FRANK DRAKE.

A proposal from the air cadet service of the United States Army that Kiwanis International sponsor a flying cadet training program throughout the country will be considered today by the 25th annual international convention meeting here.

Studying the problem of defense from 34 angles, including traffic safety, vocational guidance, better business standards and moral and spiritual betterment, the Kiwanians' resolution committee yesterday approved the proposition of the Aviation Cadet Board to sponsor groups of flying cadets wherever there is a Kiwanis club located. The vote was unanimous.

Robin Moor's Attacker Bore French Name

Insignia Had Been Painted Over, Sunken Craft's Officer Says.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, June 17.—(P)—Thousands of words of official statements were taken today by United States consular officials from the officers, crew members and passengers of the Robin Moor, telling exactly how their ship was sunk.

All of the 35 survivors who saw the submarine which torpedoed the American freighter were questioned at length. The statements were cabled immediately to Washington where, it was explained, any disclosure of their contents would have to be made.

The chief United States diplomatic interest centered in the stories of Chief Officer Melvin Mundy, Bethlehem, Pa., who insisted in an interview that the attacking submarine was German, and of Captain Edward Meyers, of Baltimore, who confirmed Mundy's official story that the attacking submarine was a walk with her officers before the torpedo was fired.

The U. S. legation announced officially that examination of all survivors, who were brought here yesterday by a British vessel after having been adrift in lifeboats for 13 days, disclosed that none was expected to suffer any serious effects from the long ordeal under the tropical sun.

Ship's Papers Kept.

The official investigation was handicapped by the fact that the submarine commander refused to return the Robin Moor's papers after they had been presented for examination.

Money was advanced today to the 28 crew members by consular officials, who said that arrangements were being made to return them as quickly as possible to the United States. Some are leaving within a few days.

As for the seven passengers, their ship had landed them right where they had set out for. The Robin Moor was bound for Cape Town.

Today's edition of Die Burger, leading opposition newspaper in South Africa, carried a headline over the Robin Moor story saying: "Torpedoed With Great Gentleness."

A member of the Robin Moor crew, who was not named in the story, was quoted as praising the "great friendliness" of the submarine crew and adding, "I was amazed at their politeness."

American jazz tunes and Scottish hymns sung in an unintentional duet kept up the spirits of the drifting survivors, it was disclosed today.

In the bow of one of the lifeboats sat 61-year-old Mrs. H. G. Gemmell, of Scotland, while a stern sat 25-year-old Mrs. Ben M. Cohen, of New Haven, Conn. For 13 days they kept up cheerful singing together.

"Prayers and hymns kept up the courage of me and my husband," said Mrs. Gemmell. "I sang swing music to make us forget our troubles," said Mrs. Cohen.

The best description of the submarine was given by Second Mate Robert Taylor. "She was painted a dark gray," he said, "and had a large gun forward of the conning tower and a Swedish Bofors anti-aircraft gun just aft."

"The conning tower was higher than it was long, with the hatch at the aft end. There was a ladder from the deck to the conning tower at the aft end."

"A French word on the conning tower had been painted over in an attempt to hide it, and therefore there was confusion as to what the word was."

Taylor thought he saw the word "taureau"—French for "bull"—while another crew member thought it was "la touche."

Taylor said the submarine was small, between 500 and 800 tons. "Since she was 600 miles from Dakar (French naval base on northwest Africa) when she attacked us," he observed, "I imagine she was supplied by a raider."

Agreeing with others of the crew that "the submarine most certainly was manned by a German crew," Taylor said that when it finally sailed away after sinking the freighter, the men shouted "auf wiedersehen."

THIRD ENGINEER FLYING TO WASHINGTON PARLEY.

MIAMI, Fla., June 17.—(P)—Third Engineer Virgil Sandelin, of New York, will arrive here tomorrow night aboard a Pan American stratosphere, the first survivor of the torpedoed American ship, Robin Moor, to reach the United States.

He will board an Eastern Airlines plane, due Thursday at 5:20 p. m. at Washington, where he will confer with State Department officials.

$52,000 in Funds Sought by Sanford

Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the University System of Georgia, left yesterday for Washington to seek release of $52,000 in PWA funds for construction of buildings at various institutions in the system which have been held up.

He was accompanied by Regent W. S. Morris, of Augusta, chairman of a special committee to arrange for obtaining more funds to train doctors at the University Medical school in Augusta, which Dr. Sanford said he hoped might come from national defense funds.

Dr. Sanford and Morris will meet General Sandy Beaver, chairman of the regents, in Washington.

Carrier Crippled, British Reveal

LONDON (Wednesday), June 18.—(P)—An admiralty statement based on official reports disclosed today that the aircraft carrier Illustrious was seriously damaged by a Nazi dive bomber in the Mediterranean on January 10.

At one time the ship careened in wide circles out of control under a rain of bombs while fires blazed aboard the ship and engine crews were barely able to remain below.

The Illustrious was attacked six times at sea and four more after it limped into harbor at Malta. Seventy bombs fell in "the immediate vicinity of the ship" during four large-scale assaults.

Private Schools Miss Frazier, To Give Basic 'Shipwreck' Flying Course Kelly To Wed

Army Approves New Set-Up for Advanced Training.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(P)—Air Corps officials disclosed today that a phase of pilot training heretofore managed exclusively by the Army is being expanded to include private flying schools.

Three such schools, under contract to the Army, will help give "basic training" to between a fourth and a third of the fledgling fliers to be turned out in the 30,000-pilot training program now being organized to supplant the present 12,000-a-year program.

The 10 weeks of "primary training" always has been farmed out by the Air Corps to private schools, and 28 giving that training are now in operation. "Primary training" is the most elementary course, while "basic training" is somewhat more advanced. Several months ago it was proposed to enlarge the facilities for the 10 weeks of basic training by bringing in some private schools.

The Cal Aero Tech school, Glendale, Cal., was chosen for experiment and started basic training courses at Ontario, Cal. Officials said the experiments had been successful and that basic training would also be given by private schools under Army contract at Augusta, Ga., and Brady, Texas.

The schools will be expected to furnish the instructors.

No change will be made in the present system of giving advanced training solely in Army schools.

Mature, Martha Kemp Marry in New York

NEW YORK, June 17.—(P)—Victor Mature, current glamor boy of the stage, and Martha Stephen Kemp, widow of Hal Kemp, the orchestra leader, were married tonight at the bride's Park Avenue apartment by New York Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora.

Mature said a religious ceremony would follow in St. Paul's Catholic church, Louisville, Ky., his hometown. Mature is a Catholic; his bride is an Episcopalian.

Camp Gordon Fehman Talks Commercial Before Atlanta Work Goes On Group Today

Navy Continues Efforts for Exclusive Use of Airport.

Construction work on two commercial hangars and an administration building at the Camp Gordon airport is continuing with WPA labor in spite of the fact the Navy is still negotiating with DeKalb county for exclusive use of the field, it was revealed yesterday with the award of a $23,023 contract to the Asphalt Products Company, of Atlanta, for asphalt-paving three runways at the airport.

Lieutenant Commander D. W. Harrigan, commander of the Naval Reserve Aviation Base, said the Navy is still hoping to obtain exclusive lease on the field, but DeKalb officials said they would go on with plans for regular commercial operation of the airport in addition to the Naval and National Guard flying activity.

Work on the $300,000 National Guard armory for the 128th Observation Squadron is being rushed on the western side of the field. The flying unit is still awaiting orders from Washington which will put it into active service.

The runway asphalt project is scheduled for completion August 1, it was announced. Approximately 14,000 tons of asphalt will be poured at a cost of $1.62 per ton.

Couch Accused By LeCraw of City 'Sabotage'

'Political Chicanery' Laid to Councilman by Mayor.

Repercussions of Councilman J. Allen Couch's attack in council Monday on administration of the Atlanta police department and his demand that Chief Hornsby assume full departmental direction came yesterday when Mayor LeCraw issued the following statement:

"The esteemed councilman from the third ward has been shouting about petty political activities. It ill behooves this councilman, who, according to his own boast, has placed more of his kin folk in the city's employ than any other member of council, to talk about political activities."

"He has been engaged in political chicanery ever since I have been mayor and has attempted to sabotage practically every constructive measure I have undertaken."

"As Councilman Joe Allen so aptly said from the platform: 'This councilman attempts to dictate to every committee of which he is a member.'"

"Several of the chairmen begged me not to put him on their committees but I had thought that said treatment accorded him would call forth like behavior, but Mr. Couch's acts have reminded me of a Republican minority leader in an overwhelmingly Democratic congress."

"It goes without saying that a continuance of his present attitude will find him in 1942 implacably looking out of the window."

Judge Luke S. Arnold, called a "pin-head recorder" by Councilman Frank Wilson during a heated discussion of Couch's attack on the mayor and the administration, said Wilson "is just mad because I won't let him act as recorder when I'm not sitting."

Police Chief Hornsby said he had no statement to make "at this time," indicating that he may issue one after talking with his advisors.

West End To Build $20,000 Town Hall

Erection of a $20,000 town hall, to serve as a center for community activities, on a lot donated by George L. Wilson, past president of the organization, was voted Monday night at a meeting of the West End Businessmen's Association.

Building on the project will begin immediately, C. E. Presley, president of the association announced, and the structure will provide facilities for all the meetings of the association as well as civic institutions of the West End community.

The association also named a committee to make a survey on community improvements for submission August 1 when the city council draws up a list of proposals to be included in the projected $15,000,000 city-wide bond issue.

Real Estate Board Outing Set Today

All offices of members of the Atlanta Real Estate Board will close today at 1 o'clock so that the realtors and their employees may enjoy the annual outing at Druid Hills Club.

The occasion is for members, their employees and families only, and more than 500 tickets have already been issued by the board secretary. Beginning at 1 o'clock golf will be played, and from then on until 6:30 o'clock games of various kinds will be enjoyed. The big barbecue is one of the features of the occasion. After that comes the selection of "Miss Atlanta Realtor," in which about a dozen young ladies from the various offices have entered. The outing will close with a dance.

Greater Food Cleanliness Sought by Linder, Clark

New regulations intended to provide greater cleanliness in all places handling food were promulgated yesterday by Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder and State Chemist C. Reynolds Clark.

One requirement of the new regulations is that all persons handling food for human consumption or equipment, used in the preparation or storage of food shall have a health certificate showing freedom from disease.

The order also provides that all places handling food must be "properly lighted, drained, plumbed, ventilated and conducted with strict regard" to the health of employees and the "purity and wholesomeness of the food."

youths—gave me a new courage, a new conception of what this country is about. I think the United States is in this war; in it is doing by its own position and needs and difficulties, but in it nevertheless, and with inevitably mighty effect.

What of Canada? I can answer sincerely and truthfully this: That after 18 months of war Canada's morale is at its peak right now. We have made a lot of mistakes; we have had to build an army, navy and air force through the old democratic process of trial and error; but we are at last on our way, and we don't intend to stop.

There is hardly a weapon in this war that we aren't producing; counting all our services, we have over 300,000 men under arms (over 70,000 are in England), and our Commonwealth Air Training Plan will soon be training pilots at the rate of 25,000 a year.

To Americans, these figures may seem small. But they aren't small for a nation of 11,000,000 people; translated in terms of your own population and national income, they would be tremendous.

There is one thing I especially would like to say to Americans, this: Don't believe those who tell you that Canada is "taking cash on the line" for war supplies she sells England; that she is "making money out of the war." The people who say these things may be sincere, may be misinformed, or may be malicious. In any event, they are wrong. Instead of taking cash from Britain, we in Canada are taxing ourselves desperately to finance British war purchases; altogether nearly half of our national income is going into the war.

One other thing: It isn't true, as you are sometimes told, that Canada is getting war supplies from the United States under the lend-lease measure; we get them only when we act as Britain's agent. For everything that we buy for ourselves, we pay in good American dollars. On the other hand, we are grateful for the Hyde Park agreement, under which the United States is buying certain war supplies from us, easing the difficulties of our purchases from you.

Over here, I am asked often about Quebec. People say to me: "What about your French-Canadians?" I have only one answer, because it is the only answer, this: French-Canadians are in and for this war with all other Canadians. Vichy has made no difference to them; they are British first, last and all the time—and they are showing it by the pronouncements of their leaders; showing it as well by joining our Army services. If there be Americans who doubt this, let them come up to our country and see for themselves.

Peace talk? There is no peace talk in Canada, nor peace thought. Canadians have made up their minds to go on to the end, no matter what it may be. They know that they are in for a lot of ruin at best, but their attitude is that spoken long ago by Australia's Mr. Menzies: "What matters it if we have to scratch gravel when this war is over so long as the gravel that we scratch is our own."

Freeman Resigns Education Office

The resignation of Alvin F. Freeman, of Newnan, from the chairmanship of the State Board of Education, was announced yesterday by J. R. Allman, director of school administration.

In a letter to Director Allman, Freeman gave poor health as his reason for resigning. He added he must devote his entire time to the practice of his profession.

Freeman, who is city attorney of Newnan, was appointed to the Board of Education by former Governor Rivers and had two more years to serve.

Million-Dollar Rain Falls in Sumter County

Americus Area Drenched by More Than Five-Inch Downpour.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. AMERICUS, Ga., June 17.—A million-dollar rain fell in Sumter county last night, breaking one of the longest drouths in this section in many years. Starting late in the afternoon, a deluge lasted for more than two hours, then it settled down for a steady water fall late into the night.

By 6 o'clock this morning measurements showed that 5.63 inches had fallen since yesterday afternoon. More than three inches fell between 7 and 10 o'clock last night.

Except for an inch and one-half of rain which fell last Thursday, it was the first rainfall of any importance here since late February.

Commercial truckers and gardeners have suffered heavy losses because of the prolonged dry spell, as well as farmers who planted corn early in the spring. Cotton, a dry-weather plant, has not suffered because of the drouth, farmers pointing out they have been materially aided by the dry weather in controlling the boll weevil.

Many farmers have been forced to conserve their water supply, while some planters have had to haul water from the creeks and rivers for livestock.

It is expected that the rain last night will greatly stimulate all crops in this section.

RAINS RECEIVED IN HANCOCK COUNTY

SPARTA, Ga., June 17.—Farmers in most sections of Hancock county are jubilant over rains which they have received during the past few days and indications point to much better crop prospects than before. The first cotton bloom was brought in by Ab Dunn, well-known farmer of the Culvert Mill neighborhood, and his lead was followed by a number of others who have cotton blooming.

Much land is being broken with tractors, since it has rained enough to make plowing possible, and the farmers hope to make corn and other food crops for their families and livestock despite the longest drouth, for this season of the year, they have ever known in Hancock county.

FAIR WEATHER PREDICTED IN ATLANTA

Rain came at last to south Georgia yesterday with a record-smashing fall of more than five and one-half inches at Americus and substantial showers at other scattered points.

Atlanta was fair during the day and will continue so through the weekend, officials said. Temperatures will be in the high 80's. Although the rains in the southern portions of the state, the first of any amount to fall in almost two months, brightened the agricultural picture, farmers declared that additional showers would be necessary to restore crops.

Other than the Americus storm, Montezuma measured almost three inches of rain. Lighter showers were recorded in Augusta, Macon, Newnan and Columbus.

South Georgia has been particularly hard pressed by the state's worst drouth in many years. Light rains have fallen earlier in the month in north Georgia.

PATROL TRANSFERS.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., June 17.—Corporal W. A. Brown, who has been in charge of the Brunswick substation of the Georgia state patrol, has been transferred to the Americus station where he will be a trooper.

county line, and there had been six, what they termed "shooting scrapes," there since the first of the year.

"What happened was that one group would ride past the other's house at night and shoot out the lights," McCannan declared. "Then the other crowd would come along a few nights later and retaliate. That's the kind of atmosphere that little girl grew up in."

Certainly, Pauline's story to the sheriff and solicitor general indicated close acquaintance with firearms and shooting.

Her mother, she declared in a statement which she signed after taking an oath in the solicitor's office, had been drinking yesterday afternoon. They had had "a terrible time" quarreling, two neighbors, Mrs. Lum Dove, whose Christian name is Jody, and her daughter, Mrs. Johnnie Roberts, also swore.

Pauline was in the house about 5 o'clock with her mother and Doyle Fowler, a presumptive suitor, about 21 years old. Pauline had been practicing with the family .22-caliber rifle in the morning. Her father and two smaller sisters had gone to Royston, three miles away, for ice.

"I took the rifle and told Doyle Fowler, 'I've a notion to kill her,'" Pauline's sworn words ran, "and he got scared and left."

"Mama got scared of me and put the rifle back up. I started out the door and she got a book, a blue library book from Royston library, and threw it at me."

Shot Her in Back.
"It hit me on the shoulder and I turned around and she started to get another book. As she turned around to get it I shot her in the back."

"She fell over against the bed and began to holler and I throwed down the gun and run to Mrs. Lum Dove's and I don't know what I told them, I was scared so bad." The Dove woman said they could hear the cries of Pauline's mother clearly, although the house was 300 yards away, and they made Pauline go back to the house after a while.

Floyd Hill and two small girls returned from Royston a little later, and the husband, with Pauline, drove the dying, or dead woman, hurriedly to Brown's hospital in Royston. She was formally pronounced dead there.

Sheriff Baird and McCannan found the small object of their search at the hospital and took her to the jail here. The father, not grasping at once the gravity of the situation, sought to give bond, but this was not permitted.

"She wouldn't talk to us last night or answer our questions," Baird related. "She didn't cry or show any emotion."

This morning Gordon and Baird found her more responsive. "Guess being all night in that jail made her glad to get out and tell something," McCannan said.

FUNERAL FOR MOTHER.

Services for the mother, who grew up as Birdell Scroggins in the district, where she was born 33 years ago, drew a large crowd to the simple country church in Franklin county, five miles southwest of Royston.

Floyd Hill was there and so were the two smaller girls, frightened, awe-stricken but reserved. Pauline sat upstairs in the Danielsville jail. It was completely unoccupied save for her small figure. No visitors, neither relatives nor newspapermen, were permitted.

The cell she occupied, as described by informed persons, was small, barred, without a chair or curtains. There were several cots, and presumably she sat or lay upon one of these.

If she cried or lost her early acquired self-control none knew of it. No sound issued from the jail.

by July 7. Fascist spokesmen declared Italy was ahead by $80,000,000 in the freezing actions because Italian investments in America were only $65,000,000.

President Assailed.
In most respects the decree matched President Roosevelt's order. The only payments to Americans permitted under it are those by Italians living in the United States and those which American residents of Italy may be authorized to receive for living expenses and other proven needs.

Often Premier Mussolini's mouthpiece, Gayda assailed President Roosevelt's freezing of Italian and German credits as an "open declaration of economic war against the Axis powers" and a "new, important step on the deliberate path of war."

The editor termed "outrageous" the American "robber policy."

Dollar Flow Halted.
Gayda's newspaper, Il Giornale d'Italia, reported that the American restrictions would inconvenience many Italians who had been sending money back home from America. It said a million lire ($50,000) had been sent back to Italian families every day through the Banco di Napoli alone.

Fascist reaction toward the United States became increasingly sharper. The newspaper Il Corriere della Sera, of Milan, said President Roosevelt's order showed "unjustifiable spitefulness."

Newspapers unanimously criticized Rochester University's award of an honorary degree to "Gangster" Winston Churchill.

Far-Reaching Nazi Demands Face Russia

Humiliating Concessions Said Only Soviet Hope for Peace.

LONDON, June 18.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Basing their declarations on a flood of reports and political speculation from European capitals, observers in London today asserted that Russia must soon choose whether to fight Germany or yield to humiliating demands involving considerable tangible loss.

Usually authoritative sources here said Germany would make these demands on Soviet Russia as the price of peace:

1. Full control over all the rich oil and agricultural lands of the Ukraine.

Troop Right-of-Way.

2. Right of passage for German troops through the Transcaucasian corridor, a route that would bypass Turkey and lay Suez open to attack from the east. This route would also bring the Germans into the oil fields of Iran and Iraq.

3. Right to establish war industries in Soviet territory beyond the range of Royal Air Force bombers.

4. Placing of Russian Baltic sea shipping at Germany's disposal.

5. Demobilization of the Soviet western army.

Observers in London pointed to reports which indicate that Russia was preparing for a test of her military strength. A report from Helsinki, Finland, told of a general removal of troops by rail and ship from the Russian military base at Hanko. The Russians were reported en route to Leningrad, Russia's chief port at the head of the Gulf of Finland.

Patrols Increased.

Russia also was said to have increased her air and sea patrols in the Black sea, and to have ordered general mobilization and cancellation of all army leaves.

2 Women Robbed By Negro Bandit

Walking into the living room of the apartment of Mrs. Alex McLeod, 578 Parkway drive, N. E., last night, a Negro armed with a revolver, robbed Mrs. McLeod of $30, then robbed Mrs. Maude Hape, 492 Wabash avenue, N. E., a visitor, of $14, police were told.

Mrs. McLeod said she and Mrs. Hape were alone in the apartment when the Negro suddenly appeared in the living room. He had entered the apartment, police said, through a kitchen door opening into the hallway.

The Negro wore gold-rimmed glasses, the women said. Police reported the Negro answered the description of a bandit who has committed several robberies recently.

Tahiti Overthrows Pro-Nazi Rulers, Joins Free French

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—(AP)—Reports of a bloodless coup in the peaceful south Pacific isle of Tahiti—in which the Free French forces captured the government from a group of Nazi sympathizers—were brought today by passengers on the liner Monterey, returning from a world cruise.

Movie Actress Joan Fontaine, Novelist Gene Fowler, and Al Kessall, writer and former resident of Papeete, said they saw 40 persons arrested in a coup that was over so quickly only a few of the Monterey's passengers knew what had happened.

The Monterey's passengers said Richard Brunot, representing the French free government at London, engineered the revolution. Twenty-two Nazi-controlled officials at Papeete, who had taken over the Tahiti government in defiance of a plebiscite nine months ago, had booked passage on the Monterey for Los Angeles, but went to jail instead.

Fowler said Brunot had laid his plans well, evidently knew whom to trust, and simply stepped ashore, took over the police and threw opposition leaders in jail.

British Smash Threatens Nazi Force at Solum

Entrapment Faced by Germans; Capuzzo Is Taken.

CAIRO, June 17.—(UP)—Military spokesmen tonight described a battle of mechanical monsters raging in the desert sands along the Egyptian-Libyan frontier where British Imperials were said to have penetrated to Fort Capuzzo and to be threatening with entrapment and annihilation German forces still holding out at Solum. The battle, which began three days ago with a British offensive shaping up as a major bid for the reconquest of eastern Libya, was confined largely to the Solum-Fort Capuzzo-Halfaya (Hell Fire) pass triangle.

The situation around Solum remained unclear but the military spokesmen said any German forces still there faced the imminent possibility of being completely wiped out.

Spokesmen said the battle had a tendency to develop along the Solum escarpment, the rugged promontory which commands the route eastward to the Suez canal.

Taken off guard by the Imperial offensive into the western desert, Italian and German commanders sped men and material up to the new front in an effort to drive the British back into Egypt. This relieved pressure on the besieged British garrison at Tobruk.

Signs multiplied that the three-day-old offensive had as its primary objective the relieving of the Tobruk garrison, besieged in the Libyan port since April 9. If and when that goal is achieved, the logical sequel would be a big-scale drive westward across Libya in an attempt to duplicate the successful sweep to Benghazi last winter.

British Say Nazi Attack In Atlantic Is Shifted

LONDON, June 17.—(AP)—The Germans have been forced to shift the weight of their attack in the battle of the Atlantic to other areas, A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, told the Royal Empire Society today.

He said the shift was due to "improved organization in the northwest approaches."

"We have reorganized and re-disposed our forces to continue the fight to sink the enemy wherever he might be found," Alexander said.

Poultry Stock Shows Quality Gain in South

Athens Expert Predicts Section Will Increase Production.

The quality of poultry stock in Georgia and other southern states has improved in the last 14 years "to such an extent that it is now on par with that in any other section of the country," a poultry expert reported today.

In a report filed with the State Board of Regents, J. C. Bell, acting head of the poultry department of the University of Georgia, said this advance was shown by records made in those years in the Georgia national egg-laying test.

He said that in the last seven years of the test 37.5 per cent of the entries from the south finished in the 20 high pens for the year, while only 18.9 per cent finished in the high 20 in the first seven years. "Georgia breeders," he added, "have done equally well."

Entries from all sections of the country have competed in the test each year.

Bell pointed out that because of a shortage of quality stock for breeding, "hundreds of thousands of chicks are imported into the south each year." He predicted that "the next quarter century should see the south practically self-sustaining in this respect," with a consequent addition of "millions of dollars to the agricultural income of the south."

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 18, 1941.

Closing the Consulates

United States order that all German consulates in this country, as well as three semi-official Nazi agencies in this country, be closed, is but the logical result of the use of these offices as centers of propaganda and subversive Nazi activities.

No nation, committed as is this to the defeat of Nazism, could permit agents of the enemy country to maintain centers of internal attack. Which is precisely what these consulates and agencies have been.

The action does not necessarily mean breaking of diplomatic relations between the two countries. That point must be decided at Berlin. But this country is determined to remove every internal enemy and the new order is but one more step in that direction.

German nationals in the closed offices will be returned to their own country. Other, less official, agencies of Nazism will likewise be halted in their enemy-inspired activities as rapidly as the law will permit.

If Germany doesn't like this—as indicated in latest reports—it is strictly up to that country to take any retaliatory step it desires.

Is "Shooting War" Coming?

Probably the most frequently asked question of today, by the average man, is, "Is the United States going to get in this war actively, and, if so, when?"

It might, therefore, be well to carefully analyze the situation at home and abroad, and to consider the policy of President Roosevelt in reference to the war.

There is no doubt, to begin with, that the President knows, as do all who follow day-by-day developments of the past half-dozen years, that this is a war which must result in victory for Britain if the democratic, the free way, of life is to survive anywhere on earth.

Secondly it may be safely assumed that the President is following that policy which, in light of all his information, he believes will best assure that outcome. It must always be remembered that the information available to the President is much greater than to anyone else in this country. And, too, it must be evident to all of us that he will not, save in last, desperate necessity, plunge this country into a "shooting war."

It seems evident that, at this stage at least, this nation can most effectively contribute to the defeat of the dictatorships by waging war informally, as we are now doing. Both Britain and China have sufficient manpower to use all the war equipment this country can, at this time, furnish. It is, therefore, wisdom to confine ourselves, at the present time, to rushing this supply of the materials of war and, at the same time, build our own armed forces to the strength they would have to have if we actually went to war.

Again, the war of nerves is still an important factor in the whole picture. It is probably excellent policy to keep Hitler guessing as to the future plans of the United States. And the more Germany is left to worry over this country's intentions, the greater the strain on German morale.

Finally, if this country is going to actively enter the war, the timing of that action is most important. It must come when the preparedness of this nation to fight is at its best and it must come at the moment when most effective in upholding British public morale and, at the same time, depressing German.

It is now believed by most observers and military experts that Britain can hold out, alone, at least until next January. Under any circumstances, the British will defend their homeland to the last man. But they must be given the confidence that not only successful defense but final victory is coming.

Military strategists believe, in the light of present information, that the decisive hour, when American entry will most surely decide the tide of victory, will be next spring. Previous developments might change that opinion to an earlier date. For instance, if it appeared that the Nazis might succeed in attempts to invade Britain at any time, it is probable the United States navy and air force would rush to aid the beleaguered islands.

But, lacking this or some similar crisis, it now seems that this country will be in the war by the early part of next summer. If it becomes necessary at all. And by necessary is meant to make sure the complete crushing of the totalitarian Axis powers.

The duce completes his first year in the war. Losses to date include an empire, half a fleet, 200,000 soldiers and a certain ringing quality in the voice.

Night baseball makes it hard for one who works in the evening—like a copy boy on a morning paper—as one rarely buries a grandmother after dark.

Atlanta Defense

While chief emphasis on formulation of civilian defense will of necessity first be concentrated in the industrial northeast, it is imperative that Atlanta immediately begin organization of well-trained units for service here.

It was no accident that brought General Sherman on his oft-recalled visit in the summer of 1864. This city then, as it is now, was the hub of rail traffic in the southeast and the dominating commercial center of the section. Once Atlanta was captured the supply organization of the Confederate armies began to crumble and the end was not far off.

Today Atlanta is the chief distribution center for more than a third of the nation's men under arms and a vital shipping and trans-shipping point for many articles necessary to national defense. The old Candler warehouse is handling an enormous volume of goods and as the Conley project progresses, a staggering amount of material will pour through the city. It will come from the manufacturing centers to the warehouses for distribution to the troops in encampments through the whole southeast. In addition, great quantities of food and machinery parts will flow through the city en route to camps and repair depots such as the one at Wellston.

There are vital shops and other activities at Fort McPherson. There is the naval base at Camp Gordon, which may be expanded. There is the Lawson general hospital, also at Gordon, to which will come ill and injured soldiers from all over the south. There are the Army Air Corps units established at Candler field. It is probable that another airport will be built in this vicinity and utilized by the Army. And most important of all, there are the miles and miles of railroad trackage in the city's yards, the central communication facilities of telephone and telegraph companies, the disruption of which could result in untold harm.

The grave danger is not that of an air attack. There is, as yet, but slight chance of that. But there is a grave danger of activities by saboteurs, and it is for this threat the city should be prepared; for this and the off chance of an air raid. This means men trained to auxiliary police and fire duty, women trained to handle emergency communications centers, first aid, community feeding and all the many other ramifications of civilian defense. In addition, forces must be provided to man the air raid warning system which is expected to be set up within the next few months. This, however, will be apart from the local effort and more co-ordinated in a national organization.

There will be no lack of Atlantans or residents of Decatur, East Point, College Park, Hapeville, Buckhead and other near-by communities to serve. All that is necessary is the proper leadership.

Atlanta cannot afford to wait until disaster strikes—if it does. The "if" is big, yet the damage which could be accomplished is too great for the city to wait. The city is too important to the defense program to wait. The well-being of all citizens is involved and no person will want to wait until it is too late.

All is over between the democracies and France, it seems. She has a new boy friend who is big and tough and he beats her. And Laval loves it.

It is not until 1942 that the great spinach shortage is to descend upon us. In the meantime, youth will be served.

As so many have before, Japan finds herself bogged down in vast China. Thus history repeats itself; also geography.

Georgia Editors Say:

THOSE GRADUATES OF TODAY HAVE THE RIGHT STUFF.

(From The Augusta Herald.)
Seldom have classes of students been graduated from the halls of Alma Mater "into the world" by so short a step. This generation of students has been "in the world" all the time.

There is a certain tendency among men of the present mature generation to apologize because the world in which today's students find themselves is less than a savage world. In many ways it is a malevolent, a savage world. Some students seem to resent this. Some older men seem apologetic about it.

Yet every generation must make its own world. The classes which were being graduated 20 years ago had not had their school days in a world which was exactly all beer and skittles.

They made a brave effort to do something about it. Perhaps it is too broad to say that they largely failed. Certainly they did not make a permanent success. They tried, which is all a person, or a generation, can do.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS AND KENNETH G. CRAWFORD.

ROBIN MOOR AND POLICY WASHINGTON, June 17.—The Robin Moor incident, marking the first torpedoing of an American vessel since the outbreak of hostilities in Europe, offers the latest opportunity for a review of the administration's war aims and objectives.

Although vigorous protests, accompanied by demands for damages and a warning to the Nazis against further violations of the kind, are being prepared by the State Department, it is already clear that the sinking of the 5,000-ton freighter will not result in the United States taking warlike measures against Germany. The reaction of official Washington to the incident, as well as that of the country generally, follows the underlying theme of the foreign policy being laid down by the President for the guidance of the nation's course of action in the war emergency.

As concisely as it can be stated in general terms, this policy, based on Mr. Roosevelt's public utterances, the revelations he has made to some of his close advisers and our known plans for British aid, rests on a determination by the President to lean backward in avoiding actual war as far as is consistent with the demands of national security and our own self interest.

ROOSEVELT AND PEACE Despite the charges of warmonger hurled at him by some of the more intemperate isolationists, any honest evaluation of the known factors in the situation must give Mr. Roosevelt credit for a peaceful objective. If he were of a different frame of mind, there is every reason to believe that both Congress and the country are ready to follow him in repeal of the Neutrality Act and the ordering of convoys—two moves which would be designed to bring us nearer the brink of open war. Yet no steps have been taken by the White House in this direction; none is immediately contemplated.

As to what may constitute a sufficient development to warrant the conclusion by the President that avoidance of war is no longer consistent with our national security and self interest, no one can say with any degree of certainty. Two such potential developments are suggested. One is that the Japanese move against Singapore and the Dutch East Indies, threatening the flow of important strategic materials to this country and cutting of the British colonial lifeline to Australia and New Zealand. The other turns on the possibility of the Germans launching their long awaited invasion of England, with the battle extending over a period of weeks and the outcome seeming to depend on the active intervention of our air and naval forces on the side of the British.

In either event, there are reasons for believing that the President might then take the initiative in guiding the country into positive war action. War would inevitably be the result. Both instances, one or the other might be considered justification by him for reaching the decision that our national interest was too much involved for further inaction.

CONFIDENCE OF VICTORY But short of these two developments, both unknown quantities at the moment, nothing appears on the horizon so far as the present outlook permits that suggests a happening momentous enough to change the President's determination to keep the country this side of actual war. Some of his close associates who have had an opportunity to explore his inner thinking give Mr. Roosevelt credit for utmost sincerity on this point. They are convinced that he has an absorbing desire to steer the nation through the emergency without the shedding of blood, if it can be avoided, though equally resolved to support Britain with every material aid possible until the final victorious blow at the Axis powers is struck. He has not wavered in his confidence in an ultimate British victory.

If members of the cabinet and other highly placed government officials have created a different impression about the administration's objectives by their warlike speeches and demands for convoys and Neutrality Act repeal, this is not to be taken always as reflecting the President's position. He has consistently refused to assume that the moves were not made with his knowledge or consent. The President has reasons of his own for inspiring or condoning such acts. An obvious one is that it helps the country to be prepared by advance discussion for possible war moves if and when the necessity arises for taking them.

GRIDIRON ANALOGY In appraising Mr. Roosevelt's attitude in the circumstances, it may be significant to hark back to a reference he made to himself during the economically disturbed days of his first administration. He compared his position to that of a quarterback on a football team who tries to figure out the best play that conditions call for at the time. If the play doesn't work, the quarterback may try a different one. And, more to the point, often it may be wise to call false signals for the purpose of deceiving the opposition. That same simple sort of gridiron strategy has its advantages in governmental affairs no less than in intercollegiate sports. It has been a part of the Roosevelt technique from the start.

One further factor is believed to play a part in the President's course. Back of his determination to keep out of war is also a desire to gain an easy peace. Already he has confided to some administration leaders that he sees the possibilities of perhaps an acceptable negotiated peace after the war has spent its force this summer and fall. If the United States is still technically at peace the way might be open for him, as the head of the last major peaceful power left in the world, to take the initiative in bringing hostilities to an end. His hands would be tied if we were at war when the time came for those overtures.

SILHOUETTES

How Are Your Eyes?

Some rather startling disclosures are coming out of the draft boards of the nation and of the offices of examining physicians for selective military service. The nation is learning a lot about the physical condition of its younger men. Learning things which, if not forgotten or ignored, can point the way to a far finer nation, physically, for the future.

Not the least interesting of these disclosures is about the vision of the average young man. It is surprising how many have been revealed as having serious defects of vision. And it is equally surprising how many confess to the examining doctors that they have never had a physical examination before, since babyhood.

It is almost inconceivable how many men who'd never think of operating an automobile without periodic check-up by a competent mechanic, expect the much more intricate mechanism of their own bodies to run, indefinitely, without impairment or breakdown.

Eleven Per Cent With Eye Defects.

According to statistics gathered by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, of New York, eleven per cent of the men examined for selective service, in that city, have eye defects sufficiently serious to disqualify them for military service. This is the average found after a careful study of 17,500 examinations.

Defective eyesight and defective teeth, by the way, are the two principal reasons for rejection found by that study.

Dr. Arno Town, examining ophthalmologist for the New York City Draft Board, says many of the eye defects could be remedied, and he has advocated an intensified program for conservation of vision, consisting of eye health education in the schools, in industry and in adult groups. Atlanta, we all know, has done marvels through its school programs for better teeth.

Wonder if the schools couldn't do equally as well in the matter of better vision, if they took the problem up intelligently and comprehensively.

Causes of Vision Defects.
You'd be surprised at the things which can cause defective vision. The most common eye defects are, of course, myopia and myopic astigmatism. No definite cause or means of preventing these defects is yet known, but among the theories are included hereditary, nutritional or unhygienic conditions.

Which involves the huge problem of better living conditions, better food and better education for the entire, general population.

A large number of children who are born with squint, or cross-eyes, undergo surgical treatment which restores their eyes, in appearance at least, to the normal. But it is surprising how many are left with impaired vision in one eye, which might have been cured by proper care, or eye exercises, after the operation.

Vision may be impaired by defective teeth, by disease of the eyes, or by throat infection, which, neglected, become focal points of infection which can seriously damage the eyes. Many a youth has ignored plain symptoms of nasal infection, for instance, who has wondered in later life why he is pestered by so much eye trouble.

And, it should be known to everyone, that the general disease can also frequently do so—affect the vision. Which once more emphasizes the importance of early discovery and proper treatment for such infections.

Go See A Doctor.

This column is trying, today, to point out a condition which not only has impaired the national manpower in this time of emergency, but which also contributes a great deal of sorrow to individual lives.

And, to wind up with a touch of advice, every young man should make it a point of almost religious importance to have a complete physical examination, by a competent doctor, once a year. Again, if for any reason whatever that young man suspects that some physical condition is not normal—imperfect nasal passages, bad teeth, infected tonsils, bad throat, venereal disease, or any other abnormal condition, he should promptly see a good specialist.

To neglect this precaution is to imperil good health. To observe it may have immeasurable suffering and discomfort in later life, not the least of which is impaired vision.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Dangers In Guild NEW YORK, June 17.—Some readers of these dispatches may think I have exaggerated the importance of the American Newspaper Guild and the influence of the Communists and party-liners who dictate its policies and dominate its affairs.

This is a relatively small union, and I am conscious also of the fact that I have had a personal interest in the case, having been a member for some years, in the role of "innocent."

But it must be remembered that the guild wants to be a big union and that if it reached full growth it would be one of the most dangerous in the country as a Communist agency. And it is the one union of which I am able to speak from the experience of one who has sat in meetings and seen the Muscovites in action. I know who the Communists are, and I waited a long time before I became convinced that they were actually enemies of the freedoms which are inherent in Americanism.

I may have seemed impetuous, although I waited years to quit the guild and fight the Communists in it. Other newspapermen kept quiet for the sake of unity, and many of them even continued to deny that Communism was an issue, even after Communism had become the only important issue, in last year's national convention. If I was impetuous I nevertheless was right, as events of the last ten days have shown and as will be shown more emphatically in the impending convention in Detroit, where again the American element will try to break the power of the Communist key officers and their clever and indefatigable cells of conspirators.

Termite Tactics The Communists have been speaking up on our journalism, the stage and the movies through organizations of writers and actors. Anyone who denounces them as Communists knows in advance that he will be vilified as a red-baiter, a disrupter, a stooge and a lackey.

The case of labor with an upper-case L, the rebel against the Muscovites must learn to take it and keep piling into them. But if nobody had fought them, they would now dictate all our news and class-angle all our movie entertainment so as to argue the utility of trying to make Americanism work. They would also build up as great writers and guest stars those mediocre men and women of the Kremlin who are of their own pernicious group.

How does one identify a Communist, anyway? Well, how does the United States government identify a Communist? In the case of Harry Bridges the government has held two long, expensive and highly legalistic hearings, and the decision is not yet, although he has been placed in the company of the Communists, and his California CIO is constantly sympathetic with every policy of the Stalin government. The common man in a labor union can't do that. He hasn't the money or the facilities, so he must proceed by conviction, as the government itself finally will have to do in the case of Bridges, because there is apparently no documentary proof. The two trials of Bridges cannot be duplicated for every bold and suspect.

In the case of the guild there have been many positive indications, a number of which have been cited here from time to time. I was particularly impressed by the slick manipulation of political strength in national conventions so as to defeat any condemnation of Communism. I was impressed also, more than most others, by the fact that in California the guild did not repudiate the CIO's endorsement of the ham 'n' eggs referendum, which would have revoked the whole state constitution and the entire constitution of the United States as well.

Promised Civil War Presented in the guise of an old-age pension scheme, which is one thing that it was not, this long and devious document would have wiped out the whole American economic system and would have placed an upstart political adventurer in command of the state, above the governor and responsible to nobody and with the power to name his own successor in case of impeachment. The Communist CIO, including the guild organization, supported this proposal because it gave promise of actual civil war in California. And the situation was so grave that the entire voting strength of the non-militant and non-Communist population was required to save the state.

Last week during the North American Aviation strike one of the leaders of the mob, or picket, line was Philip M. Connelly, president of the California CIO Industrial Council. If you will look at the masthead of the Guild Reporter, the official organ of the guild, you will observe that he is listed there as an international vice president of that organization.

Last week, also, the New York Guild, by a snap vote of a small minority adopted a resolution upholding the picket-line mob and denouncing the use of soldiers to disperse the mob.

So I may exaggerate the importance of the guild as a union, but I submit that, as a part of the whole Communist effort, the guild is no more to be ignored because it is smaller than a small cancer.

And Fifty Years Ago

From the news columns of Thursday, June 18, 1891:

"Mr. Francis B. Hight, up to a few months ago a reporter for The Constitution, will leave in a few days for Chili, where he will join the revolutionists."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

"WHO RUNS MAY READ" It was just 13 years ago that Theodore (The Man) Bilbo began to treat decent, honest educators like Republican dog catchers after a Democratic landslide.

One day at the close of a meeting of Bilbo's puppet board of trustees, The Man called in reporters and said: "Boys, we've just set a new record. We've bounced three college presidents and hired three new ones in two hours. And that's just the beginning of what's going to happen."

He meant it. It was just the beginning. One hundred and seventy-nine faculty members at three state schools were dismissed.

The Man Bilbo had his way. He could control Mississippi. He could thwart honesty and twist the meaning of words there. But he could not thwart honesty outside the state.

The Southern Association of Colleges, the American Association of Universities, the accrediting bodies of law and medical schools, all dropped Mississippi state-supported schools from their approved lists.

The United States Department of Agriculture withdrew the federal grant of $340,000 to the agricultural college at Starkville because of the political warfare against the college faculties.

Bilbo bombastically said: "We'll do without them. We'll operate as long as we can and then quit all at once."

It sounds strong. It wasn't. The results were such that Mississippi's educational system still is suffering. The results, to gratify a politician's whim, were so severe that even he sick of them before his term was done. He had got, as the boys say, a green-persimmon belly full of it long before his term ended.

THE RESULTS Students enrolled as freshmen for the fall term in Mississippi's colleges withdrew. About two-thirds of them went elsewhere.

Tulane, Alabama, L. S. U. and other southern universities got tremendous numbers of Mississippi boys and girls.

Degrees of students graduating from Mississippi schools were worthless. They could not get them accepted in any other state. Teachers could not leave the state and teach. Graduate students couldn't go outside the state to complete work for masters' or doctors' degrees.

When Bilbo's term was up the university system of the state of Mississippi was at a low ebb. Its students were leaving. Its faculty was made up of either a tail-between-the-legs type, afraid to say anything for fear the governor would object; or a bootlicking type with little more character, if any, than education.

The expulsion of the university system of Mississippi stuck. It stuck until Bilbo was out of office and a succeeding administration undid the damage. A system of control, taking the university out of politics, as far as possible, was voted.

Then, and not until then, were the colleges of Mississippi put back on the accredited list.

GEORGIA THREATENS Today, Georgia appears to be threatening to take that same road. The Board of Regents voted, by a majority of one, to continue their faith in the American system of accepting the evidence in any trial or hearing.

There were some members, who voted the other way, who said afterward they believed the evidence but voted the other way because they believed it "for the best." We have seen in Europe what "appeasement," or taking the "easy way," leads to. It will be most unfortunate if this course is pursued any farther. It will lead to the disbarment of the University System of Georgia. It properly will lead to such action. There can be no other result. The witnesses said the accused was not guilty. The chancellor, the president, the deans and the presidents of other colleges testified as to his worth.

The man himself worked his way through college, leaving a farm with $25 and going through college without any more outside help. His record was one which made it easy for all to support him. An effort to twist one of his sentences into meaning whites and Negroes on one campus failed.

IT WOULD BE EASY It would be easy, I imagine, to raise the old, false cry of "Nigger! Nigger!" and confuse the minds of some people.

Georgia hasn't had such an infamous campaign in many years and it fondly had been hoped we would not have it again. It isn't honest. In this case it would be deliberately dishonest. All the witnesses agree.

Georgia has been going forward. It would be tremendously unfortunate if all the testimony were to be brushed aside and the state's educational system disbarred, its college degrees made worthless, its graduates barred from recognition in any other state in the Union, federal funds withdrawn, and progress delayed by uncalled-for persecution.

It is, when one thinks about it, such an unreasonable, unnecessary thing.

The Governor has done many fine and worthy things. As one sincerely appreciative of his worth and ability I would like to join all his other friends in asking that he accept the verdict of the jury and the testimony of the witnesses.

The charges just weren't true.

The Wolf in Sheep's Clothing

Is Deadly Only When Unsuspected

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

A dozen or more little dove-gray birds sat in a row on the telephone wire leading to the house. They seemed all alike at first glance, but a closer look revealed that one of them, though similar to the others, was different in color and form. His bill was shorter and more powerful, and the upper part was hooked like a claw. There was something sinister about him.

Suddenly he turned and stared for a moment at the little female on his right. Then he struck.

She fell forward, utterly limp. Instantly he left the wire and dived with lightning speed to catch the body before it reached the ground.

We hated him. We conceded that he also had to live; that nature had made him an eater of meat. If he had caught his quarry in a fair race, we could have forgiven him.

The thing we hated was his treachery—his lying pretense of friendship—his cold-blooded murder of one who had trustfully admitted him to the community as the harmless neighbor he pretended to be.

There was a time when the rules of chivalry or good sportsmanship prevailed even in war. Ever Alexander, advised to attack a superior force by night, growled in answer that he would not filch a victory. And Napoleon, offered a submarine to destroy the English navy that thwarted his dreams of world dominion, scornfully refused to gain a victory by assassination.

Those days and rules are gone. We live in a new world where all is fair that destroys the enemy—where treachery is justified by the fact that it works, and lying pretense of friendship and loyalty is considered evidence of superior intelligence if it wins the confidence of an intended victim and makes him easier to conquer.

Only the fittest survive, and the fittest now are those who not only toughen and arm themselves to the utmost, but also watch with suspicious eye every person whose loyalty is not proven; for those who are not with us are against us.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"Why should I pay you to be good? You should be good for nothing like your father!"

Dudley Glass

This column has frequently discussed—when no better idea could be yanked out of the atmosphere—the difficulty of finding one's way out of Ansley Park after dark or locating a numberless home on an unmarked street. Indeed, several of our acquaintances have accepted invitations to visit us and have called up, an hour late, requesting us, for the love of Mike to come get them and pilot them to our house. Yet our house is as easy to find as a platinum blonde in a Big Bethel choir. To us.

But I shall complain no more about the devious ways of Ansley Park and Druid Hills. I'm speaking of the streets, not the inhabitants.

We had occasion—the Mistress of the Manor and I—to spend the weekend in Birmingham.

There was no difficulty in reaching the Tutwiler hotel, with which we were familiar. Our troubles came next day.

The friends we were to visit Sunday live in an apartment away out on the side of a mountain. Not so far out, at that. No farther than Buckhead is from Five Points.

The master of that household drew a map. Its terminus was at a corner ornamented by a chain drugstore.

"We're just three blocks from that and you can ask," he explained.

The Mistress of the Manor took the wheel. I knew better than that. I would rather criticize than be criticized.

She found the drugstore. And asked questions. And started out. The residence section of Birmingham—or that section—was engineered by billygoats or mountain sheep. With a blacksnake as associate counsel.

All Ups and Downs

It is rugged country. The streets, or roads, are built on the general plan of a spiral stairway. I don't know a road in 20 miles of Atlanta as steep as some of those hills where bungalows are inserted in the hillsides. And crooked! You couldn't measure a 50-foot frontage with a yardstick. You'd need a flexible steel tape.

The lady at the wheel, who welcomes no suggestions, consulted the map. She reached that drugstore. And inquired. The man on the corner wasn't quite certain but he did the best he could.

We climbed hills, turned right, swung left, took the third turning to the southwest—and landed back at the drugstore.

Somebody else said it was simple. Just do this—and that.

We did. And landed back at the drugstore. I think the owner engineered that region with faith that weary motorists would finally be compelled to enter and order food and drink and perhaps aspirin.

Lost souls in the wilderness have been cheered by finding footprints and have followed them with confidence they would lead somewhere. After days of starvation and such inconveniences they have discovered they were following their own trail. And have sat themselves down and perished.

Around and About

We saw a disabled automobile—one wheel off—parked on a grass plot.

After a while the Mistress of the Manor remarked: "It's queer how many automobiles with the right rear wheel off we see parked on a grass plot."

I ventured a remark—for the first time: "It's the same car. I noted the license number."

We grew tired of asking. There were only nine roads leading from that drugstore corner, and we tried them all. And, as Omar Khayam observed, we evermore came out the same door through which we went. Back at the drugstore.

Is Hopelessly Lost In the Wilds of Suburban Birmingham

We tried again. A stop sign held us up. An intelligent-looking white man was standing there. We beckoned him.

"About four doors up, on your left," he said.

Safe at last! There was the apartment house. Its name was blazoned on a huge panel. We found a place to park beside the curb.

"It seems to me," I remarked timorously, "we passed this joint three times on this sight-seeing tour."

"Four times," returned the Mistress of the Manor, gently but firmly. "I recognize that yard full of hydrangeas as an old friend. But let's consider the subject closed."

Gift of Garbage

Bride of a month was revealing her troubles and tribulations to a friend a few days ago and as was one of the party of four I couldn't help listening.

"I tried to make a strawberry shortcake," she said.

"That's not so hard," said the older woman.

"But I didn't set the gas range right and it burned black as cinders," continued the bride.

"I was determined my husband shouldn't see those sad remains. I couldn't take out the cremated corpse and bury it. And I was afraid to put it in my garbage can, for fear he'd discover something else there and might discover my dreadful secret."

"What did you do?" asked her confidant.

"Well, our apartment house has holes in the wall between the kitchens and the corridor."

"So I slipped down the hall and deposited my darling shortcake in a neighbor's garbage can."

"Quite a fine idea," admitted the older woman.

"Yes," said the bride. "But I woke up at night trembling. Because I've dreamed that neighbor—whom I've never even seen—had caught me fumbling in her garbage can and invited me in to have something to eat to keep me from starving."

Early Start Seen On Auditorium

Lack of funds may force the city to award the contract for rebuilding the fire-razed front portion of the municipal auditorium on a piece-meal basis, Alderman Raleigh Drennon, chairman of the municipal buildings and athletic committee of council, said yesterday.

Available funds are about $23,000 short of the $262,010 estimate of the cost of the project, and as Mayor LeCraw yesterday approved a council resolution asking for bids on the project, Drennon said the contract may be let with reservations on the cost of heating installations or some other portion of the work, which will not be reached this year.

The city has $190,000 it collected from insurance companies after the fire, and WPA has agreed to supplement this by $48,576, leaving approximately $23,000 to be provided.

Veteran Pays Up Alimony, Freed

E. C. Driver, wheel-chair ridden war veteran, yesterday called off his alimony strike, begun off his sentence to jail for refusing to pay money the court awarded to his divorced wife. Yesterday he decided to pay and was freed from the county jail.

When the alimony question arose a little more than 30 days ago, Judge Virlyn B. Moore, of Fulton county superior court, ordered Driver to add another $5 a month to the $30 he already was paying from his pension fund and to pay Mrs. Driver's attorneys $40 in fees.

Georgia Awaits June U. S. Funds

Governor Talmadge said yesterday that Brick Miller, director of the state welfare department, and other Georgia welfare officials would go to Washington today to confer with federal officials about establishment of a merit system in the state agency.

It was learned that Georgia has not yet received its June allotment of federal funds. These amount to about $275,000 and match state money in the distribution of old age pensions and other benefit payments.

WE CAN BE BETTER "GOOD NEIGHBORS."

Editor, Constitution: Good neighbors! A word most of us consider as a magic password

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Rev. S. H. Cockburn, Baptist minister of Toronto, in Atlanta for the Kiwanis International, preached for us at Druid Hills last Sunday morning, taking as his text the words of the Queen of Sheba at the Court of King Solomon, when she declared: "Behold, the half was not told me," I Kings 10-7.

Canadian preachers, like the preachers of Scotland, are widely known for their sermonic ability, and Mr. Cockburn fully lived up to that high standard in his remarkably able and helpful discourse. He made a very gracious gesture in his opening remarks about his impressions of the south—that he had heard much of the southern part of the United States, but "the half was not told me of the beauty of your mountains, the charm of your people," and so forth.

Mr. Cockburn then led us to a new appreciation of the Gospel as the Divine plan of redemption and of Heaven as the all-satisfying home of the soul. He declared that one must experience the grace of God in salvation before he can know the half of its blessed meaning. It is not enough to have second-hand knowledge of this salvation. One must taste the bread of life—one must drink the water of life—before he can know its blessedness. The prosperity of the redeemed can only be realized by those who cast themselves into the everlasting arms of God.

His sermon brought to mind the lines of Frances Ridley Havergal in a hymn little used in these latter years. Let me quote one or two of these great stanzas:

"I know I love Thee better, Lord,
Than any earthly joy;
For Thou hast given me the peace,
Which nothing can destroy.

"I know that Thou art nearer still,
Than any earthly throng;
And sweeter is the thought of Thee,
Than any lovely song.

"Thou hast put gladness in my heart;
Then well may I be glad!
Without the secret of Thy love,
I could not but be sad.

"O Saviour, precious Saviour mine!
What will Thy presence be,
If such a life of love can crown
Our walk on earth with Thee.

"The half has never yet been told,
Of love, so full and free;
The half has never yet been told,
The blood, it cleanseth me."

Appeals Court Upholds Klan Convictions

5 Sentenced in Fulton Denied New Trials; Flogging Flayed.

The Georgia court of appeals yesterday upheld the conviction of five members of the East Point Ku Klux Klan who were found guilty of participating in a series of sensational floggings in the vicinity of Atlanta.

Denied new trials were Henry Cawthon; Dan Eidson, Walter Forster, W. T. Walton and Raymond Bryant. Each received a fine of $1,000 and a sentence of 12 months in a public works camp and six months in jail for each count on which he was convicted.

Cawthon, who was styled the "head of the wrecking crew" of the East Point Klan, was convicted of the flogging of P. S. Toney. The complaint was that Toney had been creating a disturbance over the organization of a union in the Scottdale mill community. Eidson also was convicted on one count in connection with the Toney whipping.

Forster was found guilty of striking and beating Bert Harris with a heavy leather strap on March 21, 1936.

Walton was convicted on three counts in connection with the floggings of Toney, Harris and E. K. Ramage.

Bryant was sentenced on two counts for the whipping of James Wilkes and Joe Otwell.

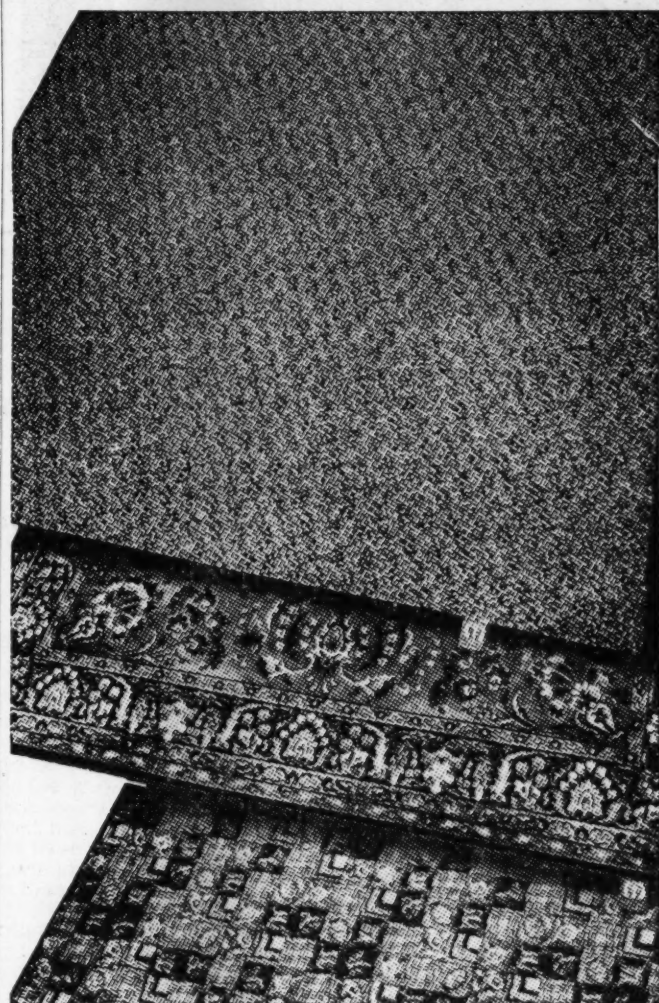

In one of its decisions the court said:

"By going out into the night in bands to flog people against whom they had grievances of some sort, or people whom they charged with improper conduct, the individuals assailed justice itself."

Decisions of the Fulton superior courts were upheld in all five cases.

Phone Rates Within State Cut $117,000

Long Distance Report Fee Dropped, New Tolls Set Up.

Reduction in intrastate long-distance telephone rates totaling approximately $117,000 per year will be put into effect July 10 by the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company under an order issued yesterday by the Georgia Public Service Commission. Chairman Walter R. McDonald said the new schedule of rates minimizes the report charge entirely. This fee, ranging from 10 to 30 cents, is levied when the caller is unable to get his party and the call is cancelled. This rate change alone, the chairman said, would bring about savings of $32,000 a year to telephone users, while the basic reductions will amount to $85,000 a year.

Conferences looking to an adjustment of the intrastate toll rates have been going on since last October between the commission and officials of the telephone company. McDonald said the conferences are designed to bring the intrastate rates in line with interstate rates.

"We do not accomplish it fully under these revisions, but we have made a good start," the chairman noted. During the series of conferences was brought out that the telephone company's gross revenue from all sources in the state had increased from $8,881,580 in 1936 to $11,666,474 in 1940, while operating expense increased from $9,738,238 to $9,346,194 during the same period. The increase in operating costs was attributed largely to taxes.

McDonald said the $117,000 reduction would make an aggregate reduction in the rates of the company for the past four years of approximately $500,000.

The following schedule shows reductions under the revision:

Max McRae Gets Welfare Place

Appointment of Max L. McRae, markets, as assistant director of the State Welfare Department has been announced by Governor Talde.

The post to which McRae, a townswoman and longtime ally of the Governor, was appointed has been vacant since the resignation about two months ago of George Kennedy.

Commissioner of Agriculture in Linder said that W. L. Cathy, Wadley, would be named to fill McRae's job in the Agriculture Department.

BEER RETAILERS PLEDGE SUPPORT TO "CLEAN-UP"
Resolution Cites Improved Conditions; Approves Elimination of Disreputable Places; Reaffirms Full Cooperation in Maintaining Beer Retailing on High Plane

MEETING in Savannah recently, a representative gathering of beer retailers declared themselves "fully aware of the improved conditions" resulting from this Committee's Clean Up or Close Up program—asserted that "this effort has won the respect of the people of Georgia and the vast majority of retail beer dealers in the state"—and pledged their complete support to the Committee's continued activity.

This Committee—and the law-abiding beer retailer—ask your cooperation, too, in weeding out the comparatively few disreputable "black sheep" who use their legal beer licenses to mask disorder and undesirable conditions.

Do not patronize such places. If you buy beer, buy it only from cleanly operated, orderly establishments.

THIS BROKE THE RECORD—When Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd R. Mewbourne, of Elberton, landed at the Kiwanis convention, they had no idea that their registration would break the records; but it did. They were Number 5,249. Montreal missed it by one in 1926. With them are Edward L. Floyd, of the registration committee, and Mrs. Mary E. Cox.

Here's Today's Program for Kiwanis Events

Session Gets Under Way This Morning at 9 O'Clock.

Entertainment, free rides, games, etc. Automobile and buses will load on Cone street between Luckie street and Carnegie Way—two short blocks from Ansley hotel. Peak on West Peachtree street in front of the Atlanta-Biltmore hotel.
Evening.
8:45—Main Floor Entertainment—"Cavalade of Dixie," Municipal Auditorium.

J. M. Goodell Wins Waterworks Honor

For the first time in the 66-year history of the American Waterworks Association's existence, the John M. Goodell citation for the most scientific work done by any waterworks division will come to the south.

A. Weir, superintendent of filtration for the Atlanta waterworks, will get the award at the annual convention of the association at Toronto, Canada, for his work in testing and installing about 30 miles of enameled water mains in the local system and for his paper on the work entitled: "The Effect of Internal Lining on Water Quality."

The announcement was made yesterday as Weir prepared to leave Friday for the convention.

Air Training Before Kiwanis

Lieutenant C. J. Weinmeister of the air cadet board, after conference with the Fourth Corps Area, appeared before the resolutions committee, suggesting that the help of the Kiwanis clubs include boosting enlistment in the flying cadet corps.

"We are suggesting that each Kiwanis club sponsor a group of 20 young men in each community to enlist in the flying cadets as a group," the officers said. "It would be arranged for each group of 20 to complete the cadet training course together."

James P. Neal, chairman of the convention resolution committee, announced that he will take the matter before the convention this morning, adding that members of the committee were "all for the idea."

That aviation board officers have just completed a 5,500-mile tour of 60 colleges and more than 800 flying cadets were signed up. But the goal for the United States is 120,000 flying cadets and that number is far from being filled.

Small Town Enlistments.
Lieutenant Weinmeister said that thus far there have been few flying cadets from the bigger cities to join for the course and that most of the cadets enlisted have come from the smaller towns—such as the average-sized towns in which most Kiwanis clubs are located.

The Army men said they envisioned the proposed plan as a means to greatly accelerate the flying cadet program nationally at a time when it really needs a push.

This development came yesterday afternoon, after Kiwanis International had broken its convention attendance record to smash, and had heard speeches describing the tremendous war effort of Canadian Kiwanis.

Vice President Prittle talked the picture of Canada's part in the war when he told Kiwanians that at the start of the war his country had only 13 ships in its navy but now has 210, with the total being hiked to 413 by next year, he asserted.

"The Dominion of Canada, like the United States, is putting special emphasis on training pilots for the air force through the Empire Air training plan," Prittle declared.

Canada's army at the beginning of war was 4,500 men. Now, Prittle said, it is 190,000 men in the active service and 170,000 in the reserve forces.

Hoey envisioned a world of peace with democracy as its guiding force after this war. He was strong for all aid to Britain.

"We in America realize our obligation to assist Britain to the limit of our ability, even as we aid all other nations who are fighting the battle of freedom," he declared. "We stand side by side in resisting tyranny, oppression and slavery."

"Something glorious must come out of this terrible sacrifice in blood and treasure which is being made. Already we look across the seas and behold England and her allies baring their breasts nightly to the shot and shell and bursting bombs and realize that for months they have suffered and sacrificed with fortitude unchanging, faith unflinching, and heart unquailing."

"The courage and valor of her people for 900 years rises out of a glorious past to sustain Britain in this hour. We salute these representatives of our noble ancestors across the seas and pledge them the mighty assistance of this giant republic of all the earth in guns, planes, bombers, tanks and all the implements of warfare, together with the necessary help to make their delivery possible," the ex-governor said.

He urged Kiwanians to cling to their programs of character building among the youth of this nation.

At various conferences held yesterday afternoon, groups of Kiwanians considered the vital problems they seek to solve. J. C. Jones Jr., of Thomsville, advocated the Golden Rule for bettering business standards; Charles Dilley, of Port Arthur, Ontario, called for greater understanding between rural and urban groups; Ernest H. Matthias, of Waterloo, Iowa, called upon Kiwanians to stress traffic safety; and the Rev. Phillip E. Ayer, of Galion, Ohio, told Kiwanians that moral rearmament is needed to preserve democracy. Other groups considered the Kiwanis aims in aiding youth.

Club Hears Citation On U. S. Spendings
During 1941 congress has averaged appropriating two billion dollars each week—enough money to have run the government in 1917. Joshua L. Johns, member of the house of representatives from Wisconsin, told the Atlanta Optimist club here yesterday.

Citing the total appropriations this year of 44 billions of dollars and the gross public debt of $48,508,402,872.20, the congressman told the Optimists the way we are spending is "something to think about." He said the "great trouble we find in congress at the present time is that whenever a bill is introduced it is immediately branded a bill for national defense in some form or other." Johns advocated cutting non-essential expenses to lower cost of taxation.

U. S., Canadian Freedom Called At Stake in War

Canadian Minister Tells Why His Country Joined Conflict.

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP)—The Canadian prime minister, W. L. Mackenzie King, declared tonight that Canada went to war because "we saw clearly that Canadian freedom, that North American freedom, was one with British freedom."

In his first major speech in this country since the war started, he took occasion to reply to criticism that Canada demanded cash for her aid to the mother country.

He told the Associated Canadian Organizations of New York in a prepared address broadcast by NBC and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, that such criticism overlooked the fact that the Dominion's direct war effort was entirely at her own expense and was in addition to huge credits advanced as well as Canada's contribution in human lives.

"If Britain had not been on what we believed to be the side of righteousness, the cause for which they had taken up arms would not have been our cause," Mackenzie King said. "I do not hesitate to say that, Britain or no Britain, Canada would never have entered the war if, at the outset, our country had not seen the issue clearly for itself and believed it to be what all free peoples know it to be today."

State Patrol Assigns Hit-and-Run Specialist
The Georgia State Patrol has assigned Trooper Raleigh Jones, a graduate of Northwestern University Traffic school, to investigate all hit-and-run deaths in the state, Captain J. J. Elliott, commanding officer, said yesterday.

A special man is necessary because troopers assigned to districts cannot conveniently leave their posts for hit-and-run investigation which sometimes make it necessary for the patrol to trace a car through several districts, it was said.

Judy Canova Married; Honolulu Moon Blamed

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—(AP)—Judy Canova, young movie singer, confirmed today that she and Corporal James Ripley had married in Honolulu while she was on vacation.

"I guess it was the Honolulu moon," Judy said the wedding followed renewal of a romance that started in Florida several years ago.

Ripley, 28, is an engineer. In Honolulu today Army authorities said he was in the guardhouse but would not reveal the charge.

Miss Canova said she had tried to keep the marriage a secret, "because his mother is ill and I didn't want to shock my mother."

Right To Revoke Permits Affirmed
Fulton county commissioners had every legal right to revoke the dance hall permit issued to the Dutch Boy, near the intersection of Piedmont avenue and the new Buford highway, Judge Walter C. Hendrix, of Fulton county superior court, held yesterday.

The court refused to grant an injunction to petitioners who sought to prevent the revocation, ordered last week.

Judge Hendrix held that a dance hall permit is a special privilege, and confers no property or chattel right on those to whom it is granted. The action was regarded as a precedent and may affect liquor stores and beer establishments.

Soviet Reported Making Big, Heavy Armed Tank
LONDON, June 17.—(AP)—Soviet factories were reported today to be turning out 100-ton tanks carrying one 105-millimeter, two 75-millimeter, two anti-aircraft and eight machineguns.

The report, from the Ankara correspondent of the British news agency Reuters, said the Russians also had a new fighter plane capable of 400 miles per hour and a bomber with a range of 8,750 miles in production.

Germans in Moscow, Reuter said, appeared concerned over the immense numbers of planes being turned out by factories mostly in Moscow and the Ural mountains.

Kiwanians Eye Problem of Youth in War

Dr. Willis A. Sutton Speaks; Group Studies Detailed Aid.

With character building among youth as one of its main objectives, Kiwanis International yesterday sat down to see what can be done about the problem of youth in the war emergency.

At panel conferences, at one of which Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta public schools, was the principal speaker, Kiwanians from the United States and Canada planned how the clubs back home will work for the underprivileged; how they will help the young men and women find the right kind of jobs so national defense will be speeded; how they will illustrate to youth that democracy will work, if everyone co-operates.

"National defense is not only a matter of battleships and bombers," Everett W. Ireland, of Somerville, Mass., chairman of the underprivileged child committee, asserted. "We must increase child welfare assistance and stamp out an environment which produces undemocratic and anti-social attitudes in youth."

Herbert C. Hunsaker, of the American Association for Adult Education, of New York, declared that Kiwanians must work constantly on a 24-hour basis in their own communities to make democracy emerge successfully in the struggle with totalitarianism. "People are beginning to realize that for too long we have taken democracy for granted," he added.

Maneuvers Congesting Route 41, Kiwanis Told

Kiwanians returning northward through Tennessee yesterday were urged to avoid Highway No. 41 from Chattanooga to Nashville because of its congestion by the war maneuvers of the Seventh Army Corps.

They were asked to use Route No. 27 from Chattanooga to Rockwood, Tenn., and then U. S. Route No. 70 to Nashville. The request was made by Kiwanian Charles Bishop, of the Atlanta American Automobile Association.

Carroll's Welcomes Atlanta Into New Quarters Today

Furniture Establishment Today Opens 90,000 Square Feet of Modern, Convenient, Strikingly-Decorated Space in Exciting New Quarters.

Culminating an $80,000 modernization and expansion program which has seen everything changed but the friendliness that is this popular furniture store's tradition, Carroll's is moving into a new home—a gleaming, super-modern structure which the firm proudly presents as the crowning achievement of 21 years of business in Atlanta.

Doors of the great new home will be thrown open at 10 o'clock this morning, and the whole glittering six-story house will have a festive air as the staff plays host to all callers to show them the layouts of one of the finest furniture stores in the nation.

Near Old Home Place.

Just up Whitehall, a stone's throw toward Five Points from the old home place, stands the new Carroll's. Not just a place to ring cash registers and take orders, but a carefully departmentalized, scientifically planned showplace where the buyer can browse among five floors of tastefully arranged suites and combinations, seeing just how they will look in his or her own home.

Where the old store at 147 Whitehall street had 42,000 square feet of space, the new has 90,000 of the most artistically arranged, best lighted square feet of display in the business, embellished with approximately twice as much of the best and newest merchandise the market has to offer.

Not to be overlooked, either, is the safety angle of the structure, one of which General Manager L. G. Sherman is particularly proud. In the 21 years of its existence in Atlanta, Carroll's has had two damaging fires, and although it has come back stronger both times, the setbacks have interrupted seriously the plans of the store.

Fireproof Now.

Carroll's new home, designed by T. H. Wills & Co., of Atlanta, is a fireproof building, of solid concrete and steel. Even the floors, Mr. Sherman points out, are concrete, with hardwood put on this for walking comfort, then overlaid with thick carpet. More than a carload of carpeting was used throughout the five stories.

But with all the newness and the gleam of Carroll's glamour store, Mr. Sherman wants this understood: Mr. and Mrs. Atlanta will find the same old friends on hand playing host—the same 60 people whose friendliness and enthusiasm made Carroll's too big for the old location. They'll all be on hand, from general manager to janitor, to make it a housewarming Atlanta won't soon forget.

Beauty and Completeness Feature Carroll's New Store

First feature which impresses the caller to Carroll's handsome new store is the magnificent front of the building, with its uniquely arranged show windows. And if you'll push through that crowd at center you'll see the theme piece: A huge, round, glass-enclosed suite of three rooms, revolving on a great turntable.

A living room, a dining room, a bedroom pass before your eyes on this colorful merry-go-round, largest of its kind in the United States.

The main floor: To your left, a long, brilliantly lighted sweep of lamps. Table lamps, floor lamps, wall lamps, bed lamps . . . they're all here in arresting profusion, stretching almost the depth of the building. Then to your right is the radio department, with all that 1941 has done to make that invention of Marconi's a thing of tonal and linear beauty.

Occasional Pieces.

Down the center, occasional living room furniture, small suites and extra pieces to finish out that corner, that vacant space by the wall. And in the rear the offices, tucked under the executive offices on the balcony.

Now a brief whisk by elevator and you're on the second floor; living room department. Before you lies a multicolored array of solid comfort, ranging from great, and deep, inviting davenports to sleepy evening-at-home chairs and deep, inviting davenports to pert little stools and straightbacks. And what's this?

To your right and left are 12 complete living rooms, all arranged and furnished to the queen's taste—and all different. Modern and period pieces are tastefully arranged in many exquisite combinations.

Second floor front is devoted to floor coverings and draperies: A wide, beautifully illuminated assemblage of fine fabrics on great racks that reach to the high ceiling. Here you may turn the huge drops of curtain and carpet like perusing the pages of a book, getting a full view of its texture, its color, its mass effect and its combinations.

Here Are Bedrooms.

Bedrooms—scores and scores of luxurious sleep suites, from pale blond maples in neat modernistic lines to trim, ornate posters—and every one of them made up with sheets and spreads to show just how they'll look by your own boudoir window. And if you're still a bit doubtful, just step over here—

Twelve model bedrooms, all partitioned off and everything: Red, vanity, chest of drawers, chair—the whole suite in the color, the arrangement and the price the doctor ordered. Could shopping be made simpler?

Fourth Floor: Dining room suites, from light dinettes of chromium steel to heavy, banquet-like groups of sturdy oak and mahogany. A gamut of beautiful maples. And a nursery department where you'll have a hard time with Junior, getting him away from all those new little things for the little fellows' rooms. Let him look, Mother; he's been a pretty nice boy. And they really aren't expensive. Notice the tags.

Such Kitchens.

Fifth Floor: Kitchens—all kinds of kitchens. Everything, from refrigerators to cook stoves, and all kinds of everything. Too, Carroll's has thought it out for you again—with a string of five little rooms, all outfitted and equipped with what a kitchen needs, to make your choice an easy one.

That, in a few words, is the works, unless you'd care to slip down to the basement; the shipping department, where Carroll's fleet of nine delivery trucks puts into port and out again, four at a time, taking Mr. and Mrs. Atlanta's furniture to their homes.

You're impressed by the clean, light airiness of it all . . . the fact that you've seen so much and that none of it has appeared crowded . . . the broad sweep of floor after floor, with their clever combinations of color, their endless array of neatly organized suites and units.

You've just been through 90,000 square feet of glamor store.

Good Will, Ads Make Success, Says Sherman

Carroll's General Manager Has Concise Formula for Growth of Store.

L. G. Sherman, general manager of Carroll's, says that Carroll's success in Atlanta can be summarized in a phrase that needs nine words only—no more, no less.

"The good will of the customers plus consistent advertising. 'Our policy,' said Mr. Sherman yesterday on the eve of the opening, 'has been to have something to tell them, to tell it to them intelligently and consistently, then treat them right when they come to get it. That's what keeps them coming back.'"

Carroll's has found generous use of newspaper space and the regular Sidewalk Snoopers broadcasts an unbeatable combination for building business.

Big Revolving Show Window New Feature

Merry-Go-Round Effect Will Display Rooms and Furnishings.

The great revolving merry-go-round show window in the middle of Carroll's lobby, largest of its kind in the nation, will be a fickle, inconstant thing.

To begin with, it will be divided into three rooms, which will pass before the onlooker's eyes on endless march.

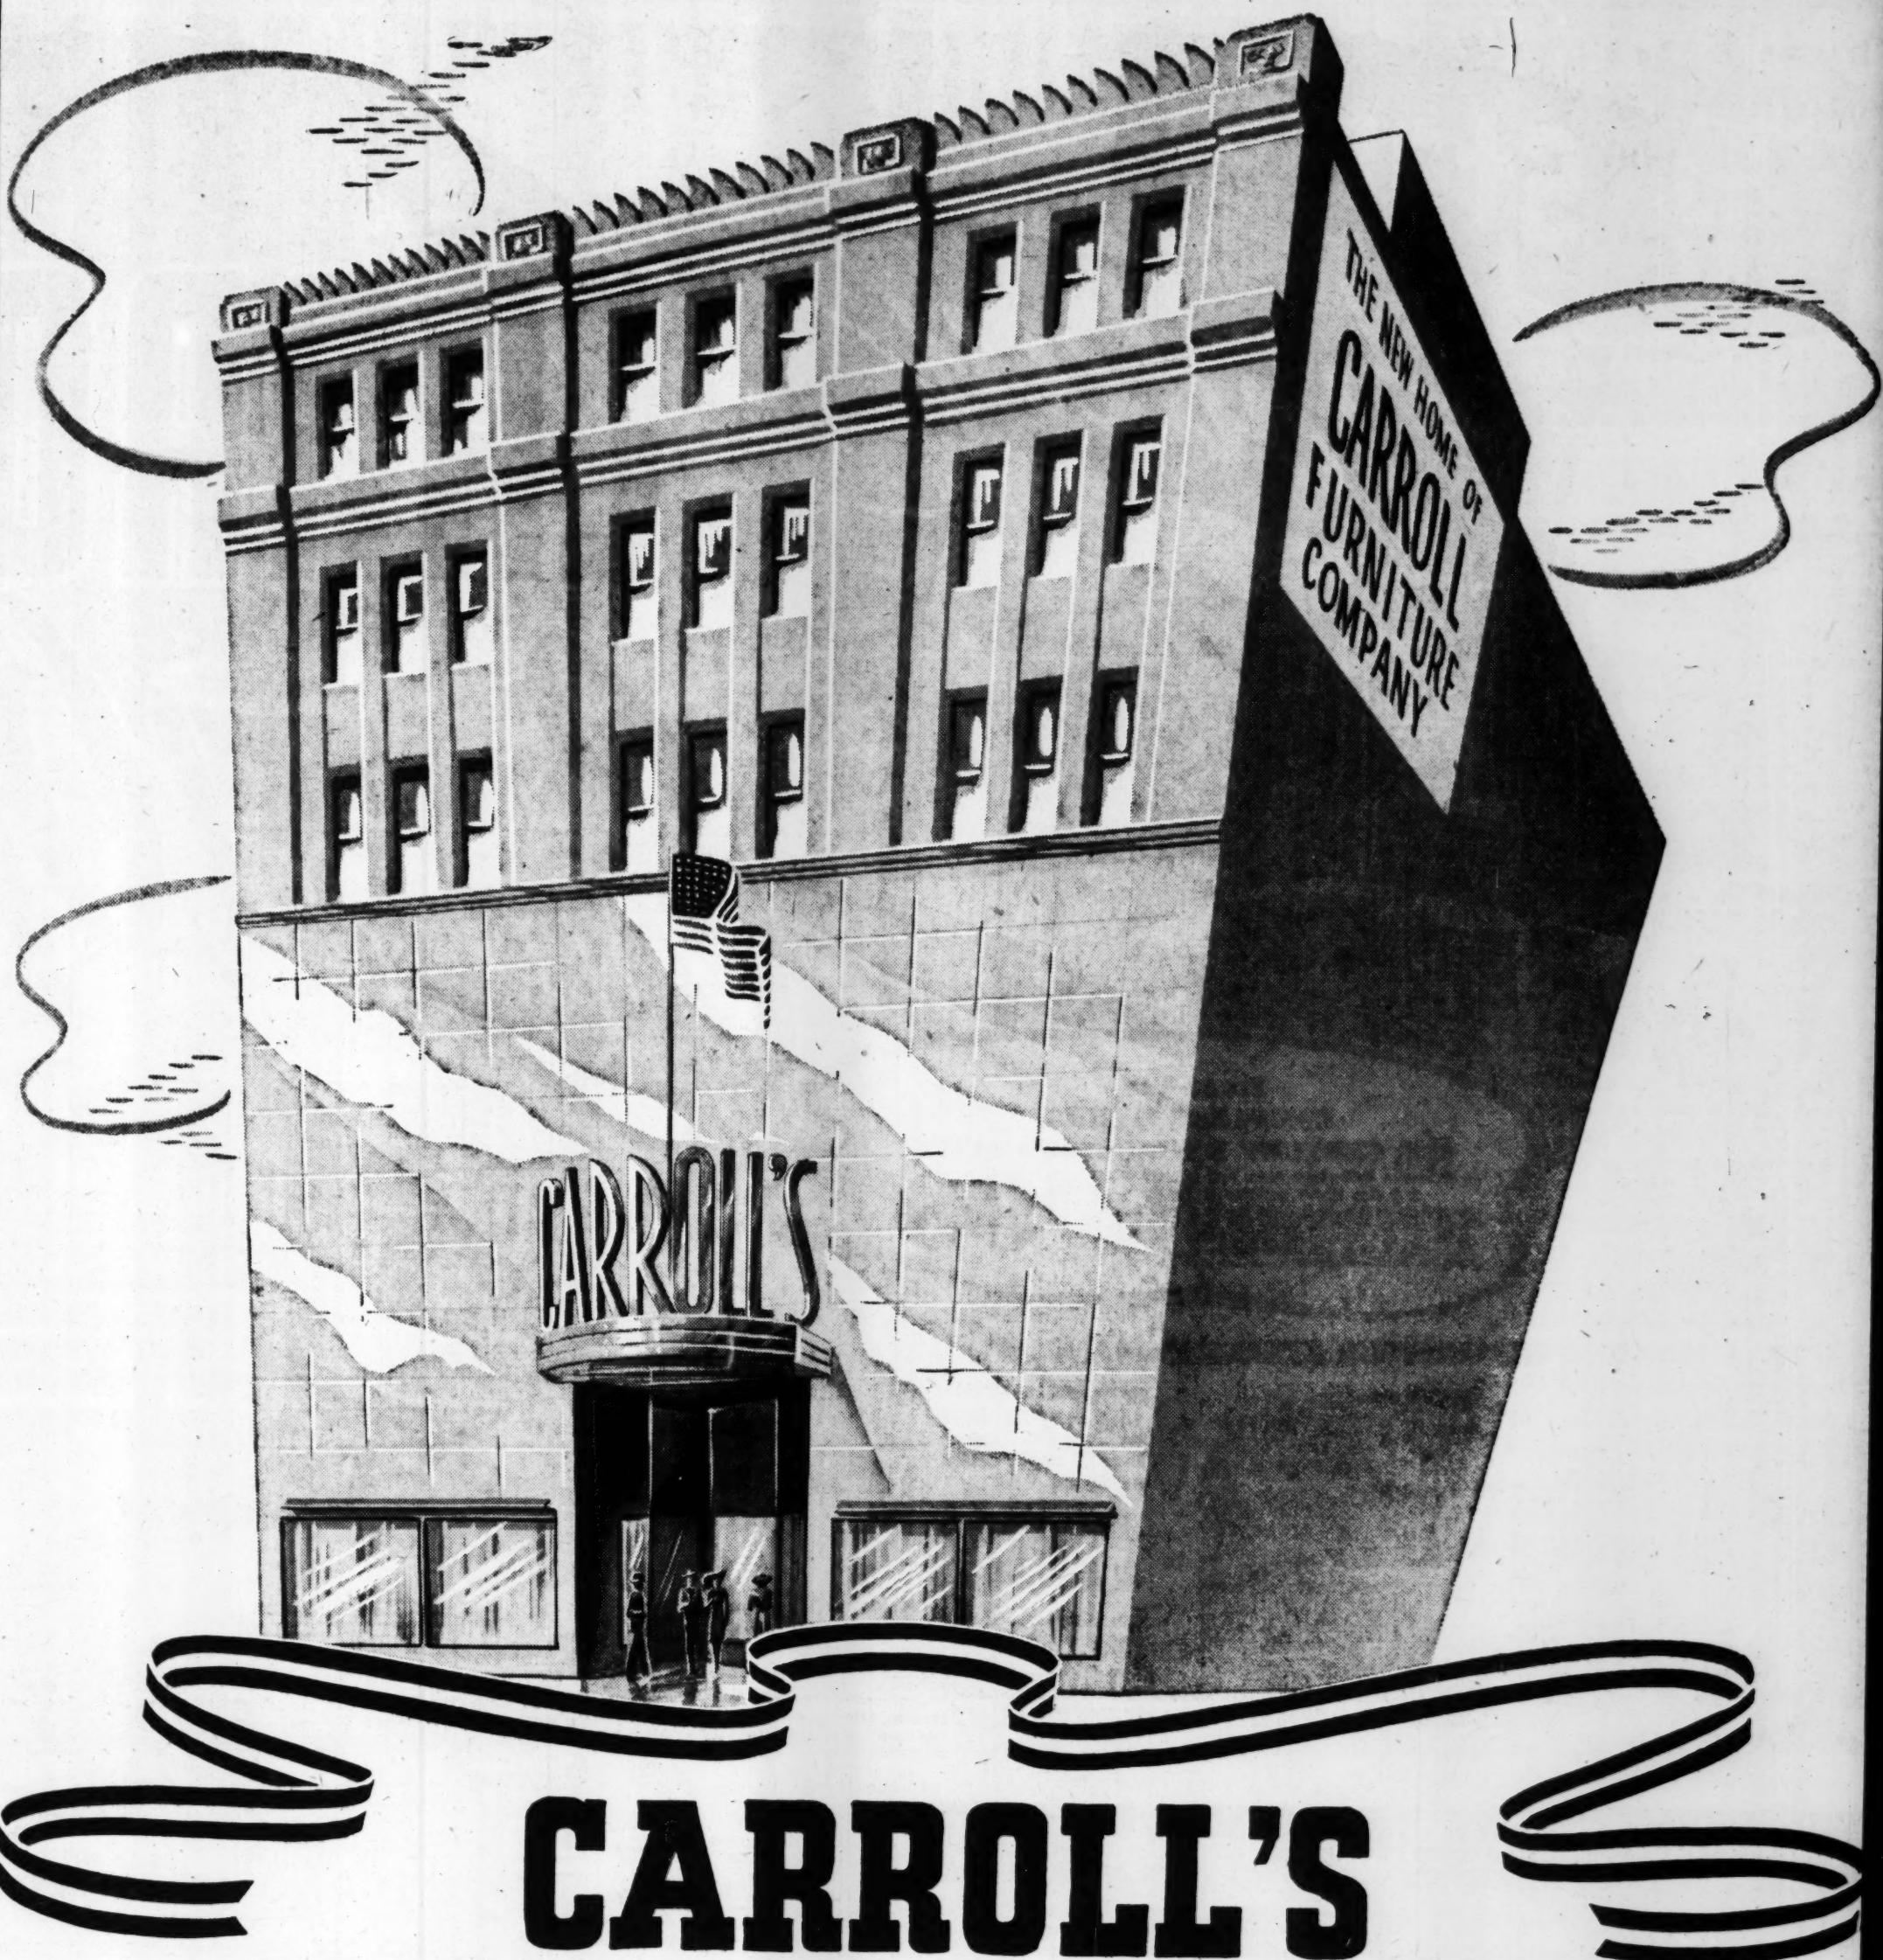

But later it may be two rooms, or one, or perhaps an outdoor garden scene. It has all kinds of possibilities for displaying of seasonal furnishings, and plans are to keep it in tune with time, taste and the temperature.

Incidentally, if all Carroll's front show windows were placed end to end they'd reach 240 feet in length. Their arrangement in the lobby measures 47 feet by 72 feet.

Frank, Johnny Snoop Today In New Store

Radio Duo Will Carry on Among Thronging Visitors.

Frankie and Johnny, also referred to as the Sidewalk Snoopers, will do their snooping in the aisles of the store when Carroll's opens in new headquarters today. Long-time favorites with Atlanta radio listeners, the boys who hand out Carroll's souvenirs with their questions will be roaming up and down and around with their portable mike, asking all comers how they like the new addition to the Atlanta's show-place stores. Frankie and Johnny have been on the air for Carroll's more than five years, now doing two a day, five days a week. They've made more than 2,700 broadcasts since the popular feature made its bow and have handed out thousands of "souvenirs from Carroll's."

THE SOUTH'S MOST BEAUTIFUL FURNITURE STORE

TO US a new baby was born and like all proud parents we could go on raving for hours, but being modest, we will refrain from going into raptures over the magnificence of this new building. The fact that it contains the largest revolving show window in America . . . that it is streamlined in every department and that it is truly as modern as tomorrow's super aeroplane . . . Was that bragging? . . . We did not mean it . . . It just slipped, but seriously we are really proud of the achievement, in building what we believe to be one of the most modern furniture establishments in all America.

The Army IN GEORGIA

"Well, reveille blows about 8:15 a. m.—an' then you have about an hour'n a half for breakfast."

Appointment of project officers to serve at the Army Air Corps advanced flying schools to be established at Moultrie and Valdosta was announced yesterday by Brigadier General Walter R. Weaver, commanding the Southeast Training Center.

Major Y. H. Taylor, who has been director of training at the Selma (Ala.) flying school, has been assigned to the Moultrie station. He will be assisted by Captain D. I. Moler, former commanding officer of Training Squadron No. 1 at Gunter Field, Ala.

In command of the Valdosta school will be Lieutenant Colonel Fred C. Nelson, who has been stationed at Sacramento, Cal. He will be assisted by Captain T. Miller, of Maxwell Field, Ala.

The Moultrie camp will receive 188 officers, 352 cadets, 2,015 enlisted men and 15 nurses. The project will cover 1,600 acres and be devoted to training in two-engine pursuit planes.

At Valdosta will be stationed 388 officers, 628 cadets, 3,104 enlisted men and 22 nurses. A two-engine advanced bombing school will be located on 2,500 acres with a 30 square-mile bombing area near by.

GEORGIA STUDENTS OFFERED COMMISSIONS

The following R. O. T. C. students whose homes are in Georgia have been offered reserve commissions and a year of active service by the War Department: They are Second Lieutenants Maxie Thurmond, Cavalry, of Athens; Burton Bryant Chandler, Cavalry, of Athens; James T. Skipworth, Infantry, of Columbus.

James R. Haley, Field Artillery, of Albany; Richard D. Hall, Field Artillery, of 1083 Clifton road; Herbert H. Price, Coast Artillery, of Fort McPherson; Craig C. Davis, Jr., Coast Artillery, of 764 Fowler street.

Robert B. Dillard Jr., Coast Artillery, of 152 Greenwood place, Decatur; George H. Stewart, Coast Artillery, of Cedartown, and Roy W. Ferguson, Coast Artillery, of 2279 First avenue.

GEORGIA OFFICERS CALLED TO DUTY

The War Department yesterday called to active service the following Georgia Reserve officers: Second Lieutenants Lloyd C. Crawford, Quartermaster Corps, of 904 Rosedale road; Bruce A. Renfro Jr., Engineers, of Columbus; and Lucius A. Bryant Jr., Field Artillery, of 826 Penn avenue, and First Lieutenant James F. Gavin, Medical Corps, of Fort Gaines.

SOUTHERN MILLS AWARDED CONTRACTS
The War Department yesterday announced the award of three contracts to southern mills for cotton duck material to be used by the Quartermaster Corps.

The bids went to the Scottsdale mills, of Scottsdale, for 1,200,000 yards at $357,960; West Point Manufacturing Company at Langdale, Ala., for 875,000 yards at $241,237 and for 700,000 yards at $192,990; Dixie Cotton Mills at LaGrange for 537,000 yards at $109,621.

LIEUTENANT COLONELS ARE TRANSFERRED

Army orders yesterday included the following two transfers: Lieutenant Colonel Charles L. Clifford, Cavalry, from Jackson, Miss., to Atlanta, and Lieutenant Colonel Theodore L. Dunn, Infantry, from Camp Bowie to Fort Benning.

FORT McPHERSON TRAINEES ASSIGNED

The Reception Center at Fort McPherson yesterday announced that it had assigned 14 trainees to the Field Artillery Replacement Training Center at Fort Sill, Okla. They are Foster F. Magness, Doyle M. Cargile, Julius C. Davis, R. P. Walls, Leonard L. Pillivant, William L. Hicks, Jessie C. Roberts, Richard L. Brown, Bryan B. Vincent, James E. Akins, David A. Solomon, Jasper J. Brown, Andrew M. Clark and J. A. Pirkle.

CONSTRUCTION AGENTS CONFER ON CAMP

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 17.—Responding to a call from Washington, D. C., Dave Wainer, of the Wainer Construction Company, and Dr. C. C. Giddens and R. N. Liechren, of the J. N. Bray Construction Company, all of this city, are in Washington in conference with War Department heads on the construction work for the United States Army bombardier camp here.

Japanese Drop Trade Parleys In East Indies

Accept Dutch Refusal; Say Relations Normal.

BATAVIA, Netherlands East Indies, June 17.—(AP)—The Japanese accepted failure today in their long negotiations for vastly increased supplies of strategic raw materials from these islands, and promised moreover that the Dutch refusal would make "no change in normal relations."

It thus appeared not only that Japan for the present was abandoning efforts at economic penetration, but that the effect would be to block German efforts to obtain certain Indies commodities through Japan.

A joint communique issued after a last conference—in which the Dutch governor-general declined to reconsider—stated:

"Both the Netherlands and Japanese delegations greatly regret that economic negotiations between them have unfortunately come to no satisfactory result. It is needless, however, to add that discontinuing the present negotiations will lead to no change in normal relations between the Netherlands East Indies and Japan."

These words—"normal relations"—were particularly emphasized by Kenkichi Yoshizawa, head of the Japanese delegation.

To a suggestion by correspondents that the exigencies of the war might make some changes in existing N. E. I. policies, Yoshizawa responded:

"In that case my government undoubtedly will ask some adjustment."

Observers presumed that he referred to reports that the N. E. I. might even further reduce the quotas of vital products—such as rubber and tin—now sold to Japan.

U. S. Navy Officer Missing in Syria

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP)—The Navy Department said today Lieutenant Commander George Wilson Grove, of the United States Naval Reserve, had been reported missing since June 13 on a flight with the Royal Air Force in Iraq.

Commander Grove, 46, had been assigned to duty with the RAF as a naval observer. The Navy gave no details as to the apparent cause of the plane's disappearance, but it was understood that because of flat terrain in the region hope existed of finding Commander Grove alive.

His wife, Mrs. Katharine Grove, of Cornwall, Conn., has been notified that the search is being continued by the RAF.

Derailed Freight Cars Tie Up Boulevard Traffic

Five Southern railway freight cars jumped the track yesterday and tied up Boulevard and Tenth street traffic for hours during the peak traffic load at 5 o'clock, police reported.

Though motorists got in a jam, streetcar riders suffered little delay. A trolley car trapped on the end-of-the-line side shuttled back and forth to transport the riders brought out by trolleys from town.

United States Army Quartermaster Corps Yesterday Was Colonel James V. McDowell, Purchasing and Constructing Quartermaster with Headquarters at Candler Warehouse.

On the day the quartermaster corps was celebrating its 166th anniversary, Colonel McDowell became the father of a fine baby boy, born to Mrs. McDowell at Emory University hospital. Friends said the baby son seemed to have a natural inclination for the quartermaster corps—he started off hungry. The McDowells live at 400 Boulevard Lorraine, S. W.

MACON WILL GET AIR CORPS UNITS

MACON, Ga., June 17.—(AP)—Further effects of the defense training program will be felt shortly in this mid-Georgia town. Army engineers are expected this week to begin work on the $14,000,000 Air Corps repair and supply depot at Wellston, 13 miles south of here, and seven Air Corps units with an authorized strength of 1,540 will be moved to Macon from Maxwell Field, Ala.

Selection of Wellston for the 2,200-acre depot site was announced by the War Department yesterday. The depot, one of 11 to be built at an early date, will mean additional 2,800 to 5,400 civilian employees on pay rolls of this section.

Announcement of the transfer from Maxwell Field said 33 Air Corps units would be shifted to new pilot schools to step up training before the 30,000-pilot training program is undertaken later in the year.

Squadrons to be moved from Maxwell Field to Macon are: 321st School Squadron, approximately 200 officers and men; 322d School Squadron, 200; 323d School Squadron, 200; 71st Air Base Group, 450; headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, 140; 61st Air Base Squadron, 150; 77th Materiel Squadron, 200.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess acids. The kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heavy waste products of the body are filtered out. If these tubes become clogged or inflamed, the kidneys cannot do their job properly. This leads to a buildup of acids and poisons in the blood, which can cause serious health problems. Cystex helps the kidneys remove these acids and poisons, restoring them to normal function.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Fourteen years ago a brilliant physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic kidney and bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel younger.

BIVOUAC 1941 MODEL—Reversing former procedure, the modern soldier bivouacs in broad daylight, having driven all night, his eyes glued to the road ahead of his battle wagon. Here we see Grady L. Lewis, of Alabama, and Lieutenant Richard H. McCage, of New Jersey, snatching a few winks while awaiting orders to attack in the big Army maneuvers in Tennessee. The bantam cars are lined up under trees

Army Games Upset as Infantry Captures Division of Big Tanks

(The Army's first full-scale experiment with mechanized warfare in the Battle of Tennessee failed to develop as most observers had expected yesterday. The armored second division proved it could conquer a mountain but failed to make good its threat to rout a superior force of mechanized infantry. In the following stories two Associated Press correspondents, one of whom went into action with each of the opposing forces, tell what happened.)

By JERRY T. BAULCH.

WITH THE ARMY IN TENNESSEE—Striking furiously at wave upon wave of tanks attacking their rear, the defending Blue forces today stemmed the vaunted power of the Second armored division and drove its heavy columns back, capturing scores of tanks and scout cars.

Persistent, fast-moving counterattacks by antitank guns met the armored troops as they moved in a dozen separate columns, like so many fingers feeling for soft spots vulnerable to the mailed fist of the mechanized juggernaut.

The Second division had struck at the rear of the Blue shortly before dawn, encircling both flanks to form a powerful pincer to squeeze the entire defending army. Meanwhile, the Fifth division from Fort Custer, Mich., engaged the Twenty-seventh and Thirtieth divisions at the front along Duck river.

The mobility of the Blues' guns—hitched behind fast trucks and quickly rolled into position at hillcrests and road junctions—enabled the Blue army to checkmate almost every move attempted by the tanks.

When the problem, the first in the Tennessee war games involving tanks, ended, approximately 65 of the Second division's (Fort Benning, Ga.) 325 tanks were reported captured by the Blues.

By RICE YAHNER.

WITH THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION IN TENNESSEE—Thirty-one tanks—14 of them 23-ton break-through destroyers of the Army—picked their way today over two middle Tennessee mountain knobs, so steep and boulder-strewn that a farmer wouldn't have risked his spring wagon on it, even if the horse could have found footing.

It was the most remarkable performance of the day as the first full U. S. armored division to appear in the field problems aimed all its men and might at two infantry divisions, but failed to knock them out.

The heavy tanks that went over the mountains were to have administered the coup de grace to the two divisions pocketed by a five-clawed looping attack of the armored division.

Because of the sturdy antitank defense of the infantry divisions, the Twenty-seventh and Thirtieth, the break-through tanks didn't get a chance to deal the sledgehammer blow.

But, after the tanks had climbed up and down the hilly country, dusty Major John P. Kidwell, the commander, exclaimed exultantly: "If Hitler can cross the Alps so can we."

Nazis' Norway Embargo Stops Massing Stirs Export of Oil On East Coast

London Alarmed Lest Movement Means Try at Scotland.

By The Associated Press.
Grave consideration was given reports from the Scandinavian peninsula by Londoners last night and apprehension was expressed in some quarters that the massing of German troops on the west coast of Norway presaged an attempted invasion of the British Isles through Scotland.

The Norwegians said that in the last few days numerous troop trains carrying marines and material had passed through Oslo on the way to west coast bases.

In addition, reports from Kragero, on the Skagerrak, say a steady procession of transports and other vessels has been steaming in a westerly direction.

Coincidentally, the Finnish newspaper Sanomata in Helsinki declared that the military situation in the Baltic was ripe for surprises likely to affect Finland.

"We have no right to shut our eyes to what is happening around us," the newspaper said, and Helsinki was alive with rumors of troop movements on both sides of the Russian frontier with Finland.

Second Interruption.
Last night a Helsinki dispatch reporting a large-scale evacuation of the Soviet military base at Hanko, which the Russians took from the Finns last year in the Russo-Finnish peace, was interrupted at the Berlin relay before it could be completed.

It was a general occasion in which Finnish dispatches dealing with Soviet military affairs had been so cut.

Only a few days ago, Soviet Russia announced officially that German soldiers were moving back into northern and northeastern Germany from the Balkans.

pipelines from the mid-continent-Texas fields to the Atlantic seaboard.

Differences of opinion developed, however, on the comparative merits of the various types of line and routes to be followed.

Representatives of all branches of the industry will meet here Thursday at Ickes' invitation, to discuss plans "to further the effective utilization of our petroleum resources in the national emergency."

Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, said that "widespread rumors" that Ickes "would consult only major producers in drafting defense plans for co-ordinating the oil industry were entirely without basis."

The senator said that he and other members of a senate subcommittee investigating possibilities of developing minerals and oils would attend the Thursday conference.

DENTIST TO ENTER ARMY.

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 17.—Dr. Lucien C. Holtzendorff, Valdosta dentist, has received his call to military service and he will report to the Lawson general hospital. He is closing his office here.

British Driving From Heights Of Damascus

Push Slowly Across Plains; Resistance Is Strong.

CAIRO, June 17.—(AP)—British and Free French forces fighting their way into Syria were reported nearing the capital city of Damascus tonight, pushing slowly down into the plains of Damascus after having reached the hills overlooking them.

The British Middle East command reported the capture of "several further positions" in the region about Kissout, 10 miles south of Damascus, and heavy fighting was reported under way tonight.

(A dispatch direct from Damascus said the booming of cannon could be heard in the capital and that the battle was believed coming near.)

The British command acknowledged "strong counterattacks" by the French in the central sector in the vicinity of Merdjayoun and Kuneitra.

British dispatches tonight said that the British still held Merdjayoun, however, in denial of French reports that the city had been recaptured by the French Monday.

The British command stated that "heavy fighting" was in progress in both the Merdjayoun and Kuneitra sectors, and that British and Free French reinforcements were being rushed to the scene.

British colonial units were said to have engaged the Vichy forces in this area.

DRAGON HUNTING

BY NORMAN CHANDLER, CHAIRMAN, NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS COMMITTEE

GET this little thought into your mind: A dictator—or any government by any name—never forbids freedom of thought and speech except from fear of the TRUTH.

It is the TRUTH that hurts. With the press and public speech completely FREE, a lie is quickly exposed.

We ought to keep these facts right up in front of us. For, every so often, even in free America, you hear agitation for "making" the newspapers or the radio "agree" with this or that group. Notice one thing: In every case it is some person or group anxious to have things ITS way when such agitation occurs.

Perhaps it isn't always the newspapers' own sleuthing which turns up public or private malefactors. But it is generally FROM NEWSPAPERS that YOU get the news!

That is the job of a newspaper—to slay dragons or furnish aid and support to the dragon hunters. Naturally, the DRAGON doesn't like it.

Hitler didn't take over all Germany's newspapers because they were FAILING to report facts and honest opinion. He took them over for the OPPOSITE reason. They were "in disagreement with the policy of the State."

Since he WAS "the State," that only meant the press disagreed with HIM.

Over here, we set our papers to the task of watching carefully for any signs that OUR power, the power of the PEOPLE, is being taken over by any group, whether it calls itself "government," or "business," or "labor," or the "Women's Pink Tea Club."

We value our LIBERTY, our RIGHTS; and we want to know ALL ABOUT anyone who dares to threaten our right to hear any side of any argument which concerns the public interest. We want the TRUTH. We think we can tell truth from lies if there's REAL freedom of expression.

Any time a newspaper fails to serve the PUBLIC, that newspaper is duly punished; many an EX-publisher can testify to the TRUTH of that!

Over 300 leading newspaper publishers join together to bring you this weekly message about the function of the press in a free nation. Newspaper Publishers Committee, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York.

If Back Aches or Ankles Swell, Flush Your Kidneys

If you're feeling out of sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Distention, circles under eyes and tired, worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic kidney and bladder troubles. Worry, colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of acids and overload your kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess acids. The kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heavy waste products of the body are filtered out. If these tubes become clogged or inflamed, the kidneys cannot do their job properly. This leads to a buildup of acids and poisons in the blood, which can cause serious health problems. Cystex helps the kidneys remove these acids and poisons, restoring them to normal function.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Fourteen years ago a brilliant physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic kidney and bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel younger.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic kidney and bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the kidneys flush out excess acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, under this positive money back guarantee. Don't take chances on any kidney medicine that isn't guaranteed. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 50c. The guarantee protects you.

MERCHANTMEN ALSO FIGHT

Ship Captains of Many Nations Have Common Aim; To Defeat Hitler

(The experiences of the men of Britain's merchant navy, who daily are in the front line of the Battle of the Atlantic, are related here in a series of articles, of which this is the fourth.)

By ERNEST H. BARTLETT

For North American Newspaper Alliance. AT A CANADIAN EAST COAST PORT, June 17.—The ship captains take their ships to sea.

Their orders are given in many tongues, their ships fly many ensigns. No matter the tongue, no matter the ensign, the captains are taking their ships to sea with only one purpose, to bring about the defeat of Hitler. They know, none better, the dangers of their calling, but they take their ships to sea.

Quite candidly, this is a story written in tribute.

Captain Is Young.

One is a Norwegian. Short, stocky and comparatively young, he did not ask his age, but I know he is comparatively young because his one and only child, a boy, was when I was talking with the captain, had seized his last few minutes ashore to arrange for a message to be sent his boy when the birthday anniversary dawned. The message will be sent to Norway, where the boy and his mother are living under Nazi domination.

It would be an understatement to say that the captain is worried about the fate of his wife and child. He lives his days and nights with a great fear, a fear that something has happened to them. But he is strong in his determination to do his part in bringing the victory which will free his wife and his son.

Made Up Mind.

That determination was born on a night, last year, when over his private radio he heard a voice, speaking in German, give the news that Norway had fallen to the Nazis, and give the order that all Norwegian ships put into German ports, if they could do so, or into neutral ports if they could not.

It was a course which took him into a British port, and kept his ship in action for the Allies.

Now his ship was laden with war material. I had seen it being slung on board, watched the holds being filled and the deck cargo secured. Quite a cargo, one which would give more than a headache to Mr. Hitler's men.

"Good stuff, eh?" the captain asked, with a smile, as he stood with me.

"Dangerous stuff, eh?" I replied, for there was a quantity of explosives in the cargo.

He shrugged. "Maybe, but more dangerous for the Germans, I think."

Most of his crew were of his race, with a few Canadians to round them out. All, Norwegian or Canadian, were of the same spirit as the captain.

The captain apologized for the appearance of the bridge.

"You come with me in peacetime," he urged, "and I'll show you a smart ship. Now—well, she's useful." Another shrug.

Like "Pill Box."

Underfoot, the planking, which had been the holy-stoned pride of the captain in peace, was covered with slabs of concrete as shield against bullets and the shells of airplane cannon in war.

Beneath it, the wheel-house was strangely reminiscent of the "pill boxes" of the last war. Thick walls of concrete had replaced the stained wood of other days; narrow slits gave space to see, and little more. The binocular light had been dimmed so that barely a glimmer showed. To add to the war-like effect, two rifles stood in a rack to one side.

"For mines," the captain explained. "Good target practice. You always know when you get a hit. Good fun, that."

"Do you get much target practice?" I asked.

The captain and his chief officer exchanged smiles.

Typical Sailors.

"I do the shooting, he does the work," the captain explained. "He has to handle the paravane gear, and he doesn't like it. Says it is always getting in his way, and then if we do see a mine I get the fun of the shooting."

This Norwegian captain and his chief officer are typical. They can be found in their hundreds in the ships which sail the seas so that their lands, one day, will be free. They can be found under any of the flags which sail under the protection of the white ensign, I talked to a Greek captain, who still did not know whether his family had escaped the fighting which had raged in and around the town where he had left them; met a Yugoslavian who cursed the Germans who had overrun his land. Each, the one quietly, the other volubly, spoke of "the day" when the tables would be turned.

Back in Service.

The talk I think I'll remember longest, though, came from a British captain.

He had left the sea before war broke out, but was quick to get back to service again when the need of his services arose.

There was a letter waiting for him in the naval control office when he came in to report his ship safely in port. He read it quickly, then looked up to the naval control officer, an old friend.

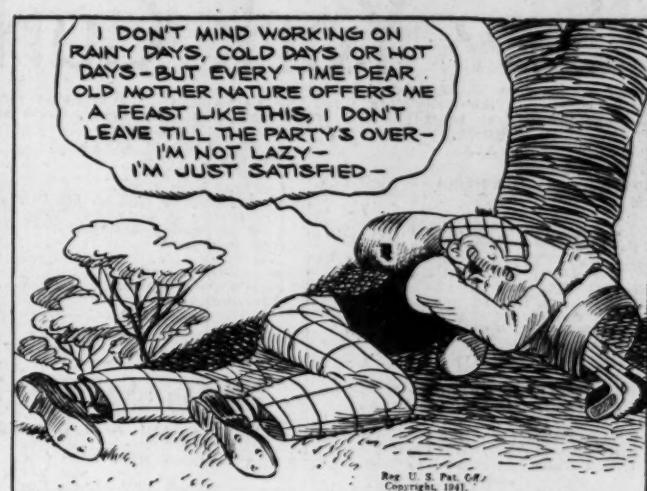

"Well, I'll be damned," he said. "I used to have six houses, now the 'missus' writes to tell me I've got half of one left. The bombs got the rest."

There was ready sympathy from the naval control officer, quick inquiry as to whether any of the captain's family had been hurt, and congratulations when the answer was in the negative.

The captain folded the letter, and placed it in his pocket.

"Well," he said, "let's get on with it. There's a war to be won."

AROUND Atlanta

WITH THE CONSTITUTION STAFF

Mrs. Tillie Thomas, president of the Atlanta Association of Insurance Women, and Miss Josephine Murphy, delegate, leave tomorrow by plane for Nashville, Tenn., to attend the national convention of the association on June 20-22.

Labor sponsors of a huge aid to Britain rally, scheduled at the municipal auditorium on the night of June 20, yesterday announced postponement of the meeting because of inability to obtain nationally known speakers for that date. They said they would announce another date at which the speakers could arrange their schedules and attend.

"Tovarich," the three-act historical comedy, will open the five-week session of the Atlanta University summer theater at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in Howe Memorial Hall, Spelman College. Mme. M. Cooke, in charge of summer theater production for the last seven years, will direct the play, which will be repeated June 20 and 21.

Dr. Herman L. Turner, pastor of the Covenant Presbyterian church, is attending the Rotary International convention in Denver.

at the CITY HALL

City council has deferred revoking a contract with J. C. Banks or towing in wrecked automobiles. The action was taken pending a written agreement by Banks to surrender the contract to W. Robinson and Henry A. Stephens, whom the police committee recommended. The contract has been a controversial issue for the past several weeks.

Council action on a proposed new fire ordinance designed to modernize such regulations was deferred pending a study of the proposal by council members. Fire card members said no major changes were incorporated, but several members said they wished

Col. Dr. Turner is president-elect of the Atlanta Rotary Club.

Airport Area Kiwanis Club meeting today will be postponed to enable members to attend the convention session of the Kiwanis International. Dr. Walker Curtis, president, announced.

Gordon Street Baptist W. M. U. will meet at 9:30 o'clock this morning at the church. Mrs. Merritt Duncan will speak, it was announced.

Grant Park Baptist church daily vacation Bible school, now in progress, will continue through June 27, from 8:30 to 11:30 each morning, it is announced. Miss Ira Jarrell, principal of Slaton school, is director, assisted by Mrs. H. E. McDaris. Attendance has average 200 daily, it was said.

Bank clearings yesterday totaled $1,300,000, as compared with $8,200,000 for the same day last year, the Atlanta Clearing House Association announced.

Thomas J. Hussion, Kiwanis governor of New Jersey, will speak to the Junior Chamber of Commerce at 12:15 o'clock tomorrow. John L. Parks, president, announced. His subject will be "The Right to Dream."

Bids for the proposed new Kirkwood library were asked by city council. WPA had asked a city contribution of $10,000 for the structure. Members of the second ward delegation said they thought perhaps they could do the work cheaper by contract.

City Attorney Jack C. Savage will represent the city government June 24, when ICC holds a hearing here on changing the operating time of trains to conform with the newly enacted eastern standard time. Council ordered Savage to be present.

at the COURTHOUSE

Arthur Atkinson, former Fulton county employee, yesterday was laced on trial in Fulton superior court on a charge of assaulting W. King, also a county employee, with intent to murder. The trial will be continued this morning.

G. T. Tatum yesterday was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury on two charges. One was for perjury in connection with testimony he gave September 19, 1940, in the trial of Carl Rogers, accused of pointing a gun at another. The other charge was that he used obscene language in front of Mrs. G. L. Rogers.

Dewey, Allen Match Wits On Air Show

Racket Buster Is Guest on 'Star Theater' Tonight at 8.

New York's racket wrecker, Thomas E. Dewey, visits Fred Allen in the CBS "Star Theater" tonight at 8 o'clock over WGST.

Aside from matching his courtroom skill against Allen's wit, the famous New York district attorney also is to make an appeal in behalf of USO (United Service Organizations) for National Defense—The combined service groups which are providing entertainment and recreation for America's armed and defense industry forces.

Joining the hilarity hour are tenor-singer Kenny Baker, Portland Hoffa, Al Goodman with his Orchestra, Wynn Murray, the Mighty Allen Art Players and announcers Jimmy Wallington and Larry Elliott.

KAY TO FEATURE "HUT SUT SONG"

Kay Kyser's College of Musical Knowledge will feature a repeat performance of the Swedish double talk novelty, "Hut Sut Song" during the session over WSB tonight at 9 o'clock.

Ginny Simms' solos will be "Went Out of My Way" and "Georgie On My Mind." Harry Babitt will sing "My Sister and I" and "Everything Happens to Me." Sully Mason's version of "Ballin' the Jack" will be another vocal feature, and Miss Simms and Babitt will join in a duet, "Let's Get Away From It All." Orchestra selections will be "Mama Inez," "Viene La Conga," "Amapola" and "There'll Be Some Changes Made."

"TOUGH GUY" STARS ROBINSON, MUNSON

A boy who became a thief in order to get money for his widowed mother arouses the interest of Edward G. Robinson in the role of Steve Wilson during dramatization of "Tough Guy" or "Big Town" over WGST tonight at 7 o'clock.

The boy is caught trying to hold up a drug store just as Steve and Lorelei (Ona Munson) are about to get into a cab. Something about the boy's attitude convinces Steve that the youth deserves a second chance. Steve arranges for his release, but the boy again gets into trouble. A thorough investigation of Jimmy's home is conducted and matters are finally straightened out.

Marathon Pianist Plays on WATL

The world's champion marathon piano player, Little Jack Ward, will bring Atlanta radio fans a little piano music in the "endurance manner" when he sits down at the keyboard today at 11:30 and again at 4:15 o'clock. He will be heard over WATL.

Ward, who claims he can play approximately 6,000 songs from memory, holds the endurance record for continuous piano playing—a record of 210 hours—which he established in Chicago in 1937.

His repertoire includes classic as well as popular and old-time numbers. He plays all but the newest tunes by memory.

Old Days' College Fun

Strenuous, Precarious

College fun was hard work in the old days, according to a page from the diary of the late Delawarean Daniel Dean, Colgate '77, which read:

"Monday, May 8, 1876—Walked back to Hamilton this morning. At Eaton I came across Richard (William Durant Richardson) son of a noted ceramic engineer, and we came over together. He told me about a time they had Saturday evening at Hamilton about 100 boys went down to the old barn that belongs to Mott down in front of the academy and tore it all down after taking out the horse and cow. Mott was mad and proposes to make a fuss. It is reported that he has sued the county and the boys are to be sent up to Auburn (penitentiary). We await further development with fear and trembling."

Records did not reveal the outcome.

Rattler Gets Advantage Of an Old Trapper

A rattlesnake played a mean trick on Albert Rhodes, of Prescott, Ariz.

An experienced trapper, Rhodes had heard in case of snakebite on should clamp the teeth around the wound and suck out the poison. Rhodes was bitten the day after he had all his teeth pulled and he couldn't bite. He went to doctor.

Lake Abounds in Trout

Due to State's Error

An error on the part of the state fish and game commission has turned a small lake near Hammononton, N. J., into a trout angler's paradise.

Several weeks ago a routine order of 2,400 fish were dumped into Hammononton Lake. Somehow the commission got its deliveries twisted and a duplicate order was sent through.

Now there are 4,800 trout in the lake and the fishing is twice as good.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirolgist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Extra caution should be observed in connection with travel, hazardous pleasures. The day does not appear auspicious to undertake new ways and means for increasing finances before 3:30 p. m. Between 3:30 p. m. and 10:42 p. m., favors legal and business interests. Revive old acquaintances and work of a literary nature.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Between 7:59 a. m. and 6:15 p. m., favors dealings in land, property and mines. The period also favors matters related to women and the interest of men. After 6:15 p. m., undue extravagance should be avoided, as you may contract undue obligations.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Today until 7:58 p. m., favors going ahead with courage and confidence, when you can advance your ambitions, but don't waste time in frivolities. After 7:58 p. m., favors social interest.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—During the morning hours and until 8:48 p. m., favors putting plans into action, general business endeavors, conferences and diplomatic dealings. The remainder of the day is likely to be filled with changeable moods, and you may encounter those who are not decided in their opinions. This is not an especially auspicious time to make moves, but to use discretion and moderation.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—This is an auspicious day to improve conditions around you and to undertake work of a constructive nature. Changes and developments meet with co-operation from others and aggressiveness on your part will be rewarded. The day favors general business activities, social and domestic matters.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—During the day and until 8:49 p. m., influences about to offer elaborate schemes, but may prove to be too elaborate in their expense. Use care in making contracts, communications and promises. After 8:49 p. m., favors financial works.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Today is an excellent day to decide just what you want to do. Make new contacts. Revive old ones. Press your pet projects. Be as cordial and expansive as you can. Make some definite plans for the ensuing year.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Between 7:07 a. m. and 8:31 p. m., favors work that requires patience and time. Between 8:31 p. m. and 10:08 p. m., favors work of an inspirational nature. A good time to contact professional people or those in public life.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Your judgment, especially in connection with financial matters, will be sound and written matters, may lack clearness and decisiveness before 12:48 p. m. Friction will close in or those acting as agents may be turbulent and hard to iron out.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The morning hours and until 3:38 p. m., favors general business, buying and selling. After 3:38 p. m., favors new venture, business deals. After 6:08 p. m., friction will close in or those acting as agents may be turbulent and hard to iron out.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The morning hours and until 3:38 p. m., favors the lesser matters of life. The entire day is likely to be filled with influences that bring confusion, uncertainty and indecision. An excellent day to stick to routine.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—The influences throughout the day incline toward nervous energy, with a desire to do things quickly, which can go into undue aggression. Be more tactful and careful, you can overcome such feelings. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 5 p. m.

Driving Club Announces Series of Swimming Meets

By SALLY FORTH.

• • • THOSE MONTHLY swimming meets staged so successfully under the direction of Karo Whitfield at the Piedmont Driving Club last summer will begin a repeat performance tomorrow evening, when the popular athletic director presents the first of a series to be held during the summer at the club pool. Society will assemble at 6 o'clock to witness the events, which are limited to the club's youthful members. An interesting program has been planned to be climaxed with exhibition diving by J. B. Bragg, of Savannah, southern interscholastic diving champion and fifth-ranking diver in the nation.

The events, which are open to both boys and girls, include the 10-yard free style; 15-yard free style for children of 6 to 8 years; 20-yard free style for those of 8 to 10 years; 30-yard free style for those of 10 to 15 years; 30-yard back stroke for 16-year-olds and under; 30-yard breast stroke for 16-year-olds and under; 60-yard free style for 17-year-olds and under, and diving from the low board for 17-year-olds and under.

In addition, there will be a comic feature—a lighted candle pajama race. Which means, in case you don't know, that entrants stand on the side of the pool, put on their pajamas, get into the water, light a candle, and swim across the pool. Once on the other side, the swimmers must get out of the water, take off their pajamas, and light their candles again, in case they have been extinguished. The first to accomplish the difficult feat will be awarded a medal.

In fact, the winner in each event will be awarded a gold medal, with silver and bronze medals going to the runners-up. The winner, in each case, will also receive five points, the second-place swimmer will receive three, the third two, and the fourth one. At the last of the four monthly meets, which is scheduled for September, a gold trophy will be awarded to the boy and to the girl chalking up the highest number of points during the season, the trophies to be graceful figures of swimmers.

The girls who have registered for the meet include Valerie and Tatty Matthews, Betsy Broome, Phoebe Alexander, Mary Ann Hopkins, Blair Alexander, Theodora Owens, Anne Shoun, Stella McGahee, Sally Clay, Mary Wellborn, Anne Dodd, Catherine Nunnally, Laura Hailey, Peggy Wilkins, Helen Walkey, Dorothy Sprattin, Mary Alice and Addavale McDougall, and Virginia Harrison.

The boys who have registered are Billy Dunlap, Bryant McDaniel, Ed Hamilton, Hugh Nunnally Jr., Stockton Broome, John D. Toll III, Ralph Paris Jr., Neal Conrad Jr., Edgar Foster Jr., Norris Broyles Jr., Joe Hamilton, Billy Stephenson, Charles McGahee, Frank Owens Jr., Dan Elkin, Bill Ebersole, Howard McCall Jr., Jimmy Black, Edgar Lockridge, Clark Howell Jr., Wellborn Blalock, Jack Cram and Howard Harmon Jr.

• • • ALUMNAE and friends of Wesleyan College will turn their radio dials with interest and pleasure this evening to pick up the broadcast of the testimonial dinner to be held in New York in compliment to China's unconquerable leaders, the Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-shek. The dinner will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria at 8:30 o'clock, eastern standard time, with the broadcast being heard over the blue network of the National Broadcasting Company.

The China Relief Committee will sponsor the affair, which will be of particular interest to Wesleyan alumnae for the reason that Madame Chiang Kai-shek, the former Mayling Soong, was once a Wesleyan student. Since the Chino-Japanese impasse which resulted in war for her country, she has risen to unbelievable heights of leadership beside her distinguished husband, and has commanded the unchallenged admiration of the entire world.

Wendell Wilkie will act as toastmaster at the dinner, and Mrs. Henry Luce, the former Claire Booth, will be the principal speaker. Mrs. Luce, with her husband, has just returned by clipper from an observation tour of Chungking, the present seat of China's government, and will bring an interesting and authoritative message to friends of the inimitable Madame Chiang.

• • • CLEVER and unusual decorations were employed by Mary Carter at the spinster dinner she gave last evening at her home on Habersham road for Mary Jane Campbell, who will become the bride of Wharton Mitchell on Friday.

The party featured a surprise bathroom shower, which inspired the motif for the novel decorations on the table, which was centered with a blue and white chenille bath mat.

Placed on this were two mirrored boxes filled with facial tissues and topped with a miniature bride and groom with faces carved from soap. The bride's ingenious bouquet was fashioned from tooth brushes, no less!

Encircling this arrangement were magnolia leaves in which nestled pastel blossoms fashioned from delicately scented soap carved in the shape of various flowers. Placed at intervals were lighted candles, Tea Is Given To Miss Petter.

Miss Charlotte Petter, whose marriage to C. Fred Ingram will be an event of June 21, has been the recipient of many prenuptial social fetes. She was complimented recently with a shower and tea at the home of Mrs. Dewey L. Johnson on Fairview road.

The home was festive with garden flowers. Mrs. Johnson wore cell-blue mousselin de soi. The bride-elect was attired in mist-blue print. Her flowers were pink sweet peas and forget-me-nots.

The dining table was covered with a Venetian cloth and centered with a bride's cake topped with a bride and groom.

Mrs. V. V. Lavraff, cousin of the bride-elect, served punch and Mrs. Dick Whiting assisted.

also carved in the shape of flowers.

Another attractive feature was the punch bowl, fashioned from a huge block of ice in which colorful fruits had been frozen, similar fruits being used as a mound for the bowl.

Mary's mother, Mrs. Frank Carter, whose originality was responsible for the decorations, and Georgia Rauschenberg assisted in entertaining the guests, who included the members of the wedding party and a few additional friends.

Although Wharton was excluded from this party, he certainly was not neglected. For at the same time he was honored at a stag dinner given by his groomsmen.

Earlier in the day, Mary Jane was central figure at the beautifully appointed luncheon given by Martha Blalock at the Piedmont Driving Club.

A striking floral arrangement carried out the bridal motif in the luncheon table, and covers were laid for Mary Jane's attendants and a few additional friends.

MR. AND MRS. DANIEL GRAHAM AND MR. AND MRS. MOSES CLARK.

Misses Hayes, Attractive Decatur Sisters, Marry at Elaborate Double Wedding

The marriage of Miss Isabel Hayes to Moses Hamilton Clark and Miss Edna Hayes to Daniel Aubrey Graham was solemnized at a double wedding last evening at 8 o'clock at the First Baptist church in Decatur. The brides are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown Hayes.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Dick Hall, pastor, and Rev. D. B. Nicholson, of Athens, Ga., and a musical program was presented by L. P. Johnson, organist, and Miss Myra Barber, soloist.

The two altars were banked with palms and woodwardia ferns which formed a rich background for white Grecian urns of Easter lilies and white gladioli. Myriads of burning white tapers in candelabra cast a soft glow, and family pews were marked with clusters of Easter lilies tied with white satin ribbon.

Usher, groomsmen for Miss Hayes and Mr. Clark were George Kieppe, Carson Knight and William Daniel. The bride chose her twin sister, Mrs. James C. Fain, for her matron of honor and her two bridesmaids were Mrs. Carson Knight, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Douglas Beggs. James C. Fain was best man for Mr. Clark. Mrs. Fain wore Nile green marquisette posed over matching taffeta and the bridesmaids wore identical gowns of lilac marquisette. They carried bouquets of pink roses, delphinium and larkspur, arranged in colonial style and tied with satin ribbon to match their gowns.

The bride entered with her father, Walter Brown Hayes, by whom she was given in marriage. Her beauty was enhanced by her wedding gown of white Chantilly lace posed over bridal satin. Her veil of illusion fell from a coronet of tulle and orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of lavender orchids and gardenias, showered with swainsons.

Miss Edna Hayes and Mr. Graham chose Frank Graham Jr., the groom's father; Charles Baker and Ben Foraker Jr. for their ushers, groomsmen and attending this bride were Miss Marion Hayes, her sister, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Paul Stovall, sister of the groom, and Miss Mary Allen, as bridesmaids. Miss Hayes also wore Nile green marquisette and the bridesmaids were gowned in lilac marquisette. They carried identical bouquets.

The lovely young bride entered with her uncle, Robert Steele Hayes, and was given in marriage by her father.

Frank B. Graham III, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride wore a gown of white marquisette, fashioned over bridal satin, designed with insets of Chantilly lace. Her veil of bridal illusion was fitted to a coronet of Chantilly lace and her flowers were a bouquet of lavender orchids, gardenias and swainsons.

Mrs. Hayes chose for her daughters' wedding, a gown of tea rose lace. Her flowers were orchids. Mrs. W. H. Clark, mother of Mr. Clark, wore periwinkle linen lace with orchids. Mrs. F. B. Graham Jr., mother of Mr. Graham, was gowned in aquamarine marquisette, with a shoulder cluster of orchids.

The couples left for their wedding trips. Mr. and Mrs. Clark will visit the east coast and parts of Canada, later going to Peoria, Ill., to reside.

For traveling Mrs. Clark wore a printed gown of green and white chiffon. Her accessories were green and white, and she wore a shoulder spray of orchids.

Mr. Graham and his bride left for Florida, after which they will reside in Decatur. Mrs. Graham chose an ensemble of navy faille crepe with blouse of white chiffon and navy and white accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder cluster of orchids.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. W. S. Maynard, San Antonio, Texas; Mrs. G. W. Tappan, Miss Gladys Tappan and M. H. Tappan, of White Plains, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. F. White, of Cannon, Ga.; Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Warriner, Columbia, S. C.; Miss Margaret Hunter, Greensboro, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Carpenter, Miss Patty Carpenter, Miss Virginia Pinkerton, Miss Martha Hargrove, Miss Julia Lan-kaster and Miss Eleanor Cook, of Easton, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Booth, Tahoe, Calif.; Miss Nellie Corry, Augusta; Miss Laura Hargrove, Pearson, Ga.; Miss Lida Wingate, Doerun, Ga.; Mrs. M. W. Daniel, Miss Genevieve Daniel, Greenville, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Wright Daniel, Eastman, Ga.; Mrs. Carson Knight, Helena, Ga.; Rev. D. B. Nicholson, Athens, Ga.

Miss Miriam Woodall Weds Mr. Beall at Home Ceremony

Announcement is made today by Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Russell Woodall of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Miriam Woodall, to Sam Dick Beall, the wedding having taken place at 6 o'clock last Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. Only members of the immediate families were present at the ceremony which was performed by Dr. Louis D. Newton.

The vows were spoken before an improvised altar of palms interspersed with floor baskets of white gladioli.

Marvin Russell Woodall gave his daughter in marriage. Miss Alice Woodall was her sister's only attendant and Harold Beall, brother of the groom, was best man. Mrs. Bryan Mathews rendered a musical program.

Mrs. Beall is the sister of Miss Alice Woodall, Marvin Russell Woodall Jr. and Thornton Sanders Woodall. Her mother is the former Miss Christina Sanders, daughter of the late Ruth Spearman and John Bartow Sanders, of Heard county. Her paternal grandparents are Martha Russell and Seaborn Webster Woodall, of Woodland, Ga.

She is a graduate of Girls' High school and completed her education at Randolph-Macon College for Women, where she was a member of the Phi Mu social sorority and Pi Gamma Mu honorary social science fraternity.

Mr. Beall is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reid Beall and his only brother is Harold Grafton Beall. His mother is the former Miss Edith Mae Dick, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sam Dick, of Arthur, Ill. His paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Other Beall, of Cuthbert, Ga.

Sauces and Icings Dress-up Gingerbread

Delicious gingerbread with milk makes a tempting snack at any time of day; for a company dessert it may be dressed up with sauce or icing.

By Sally Saver.

"Gingerbread like grandmother used to make" is a complimentary phrase when applied to the modern housewife's gingerbread. I do believe that today's gingerbread has many points in its favor that grandmother never thought of... namely delightful sauces and icings which keep us from ever getting tired of it.

One simple way of changing gingerbread into something unusual is to split it when it is right out of the oven, still piping hot, and insert marshmallows between the layers. The marshmallows partially melt, making a delightful filling.

A different icing may be made by creaming 3 ounces of cream cheese with 1-1/2 cups confectioners' sugar, sifted, and 1 teaspoon vanilla. The cheese adds an unusual zip.

Gingerbread goes well with many sauces, and they are wonderful to change it when it is being served a second day. Lemon and chocolate sauces are old favorites. Apricot sauce is one of which you may not have thought.

Apricot Sauce.

3-4 cup apricot pulp
3-4 cup heavy cream
Sugar

Drain canned apricots from their syrup and rub through a sieve. Beat cream until stiff, add to apricot pulp and sweeten to taste.

Chocolate Sauce.

1-2 cups sugar
1-2 cup water
1-4 cup rich milk
4 squares unsweetened chocolate
1-2-teaspoon vanilla

Let sugar and water boil in a saucepan for five minutes. Cool partly and gradually stir in the chocolate which has been melted over hot water. Add the vanilla. Place in a double boiler or in a pan over hot water until ready to serve. At the last moment, add the milk.

Lemon Sauce.

1-2-cup sugar
1-tablespoon corn starch
2-tablespoons lemon juice
Nutmeg
Salt
2-tablespoons butter
1-cup boiling water

Mix the sugar and corn starch, add the boiling water and a pinch of salt and boil until thick and clear. Continue cooking over hot water for 20 minutes. Beat in the butter, the lemon juice and nutmeg. A grating of lemon rind may be added.

And now—a good, tested recipe for gingerbread:

Gingerbread.

2 cups sifted cake flour
2-teaspoons baking powder
1-4-teaspoon soda
2-teaspoons ginger
1-teaspoon cinnamon
1-2-teaspoon salt
1-3-cup butter or shortening
1-2-cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
2-3-cup molasses
3-4-cup sour milk

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda, spices and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar and molasses, then flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Bake in greased pan, 8 by 8 by 2 inches, in moderate oven, (350 degrees) 50 minutes, or until done. Three-fourth cup sweet milk may be substituted for sour milk leaving out the soda in this recipe.

Fattening Character of Food Depends on Its Caloric Value

By Dr. William Brady.

The following facts may seem self-evident to some, but a thousand queries indicate that they are news to the majority:

1. While the nutritive value of any food pertains to the supply of the body's requirements of mineral elements, vitamins, building and repair or growth material (nitrogen), for the body's heating and power plant, the "fattening" or "nonfattening" character of any item of food depends mainly on the number of calories yielded by the amount of food taken.

2. The number of calories yielded by any item of food depends on the proportion of the three classes of food material composing the food—that is, protein (nitrogenous material, carbohydrate sugars or starches) and fat. Protein, such as white of egg, lean meat, curd of cheese or milk, and the protein component of wheat, beans, peas, etc., yields 4 calories per gram, or approximately 125 calories per ounce. Carbohydrate, that is, any form of sugar or starch, such as the sugar in ripe fruit, cane sugar, beet sugar, maple sugar, honey, milk sugar, or the starch in flour, potato, wheat, beans, unripe fruit yields 4 calories per gram, the same as protein. Fat, whether animal or vegetable fat or oil, or fish oil, yields 9 calories per gram, or approximately 280 calories per ounce.

3. Any kind of fish liver oil or shark liver oil would yield approximately 36 calories to the teaspoonful (average teaspoonful equivalent to 4 grams) if all of it is digested. A glass of skimmed milk would yield 85 calories. Four tablespoonfuls of whole fresh sweet milk would yield 40 calories.

4. Lemon juice, which so many uninformed or misinformed laymen imagine is "reducing," yields 12 calories to the ounce, orange juice 16, milk 20, grapejuice 25. So lemon juice is merely less nourishing or less "fattening" than the other items mentioned for comparison.

5. Too many people still seem to think "dieting" means only restriction of diet for the purpose of Virginia Grey, now playing in M-G-M's "The Big Store," looks cool and fresh at all times. The proper lotion for your own skin, as described below, will help you in keeping your own make-up looking cool and crisp.

Lotion Keeps Face Clean and Cool

By Winifred Ware.

Keep a cool face in summer! Do I hear you ask how? The trick is to use a skin lotion to remove the last traces of cream, to close the pores and give you a general bracing up before you apply your make-up.

There are two such lotions which, between them, will suit any kind of skin. One is very mild and is clear in color. It smells faintly and cleanly of orange blossoms... Oh, not enough to interfere with any other perfume. If you have delicate or average skin this is the lotion for you.

Use it, as I mentioned, after cleansing, or you can use the lotion as a liquid surface cleanser between cream cleansings to remove the dust and grime that collects so readily on a hot day. Pour some into a small bottle and keep it handy in your purse. Take it along on weekends, too.

If your skin is oily... and, of course, the summer heat intensifies this condition... you'll like a lotion which is a little more astringent, a pink liquid which makes your skin tingle as it cools off the surface. It will keep your skin crisp feeling and looking, and will help it to behave better beneath powder and under hot weather conditions.

This lotion is a wonderful help for oily skin and conspicuous pores. It is also an efficient surface grime chaser. When that grimy look appears on forehead and nose just pass a pad of cotton moistened with the lotion over them. Notice how much surface soil darkens the pad, and how much fresher you look. You will stay fresher looking and feeling, too, than after a mere water splashing.

On the very hottest days try keeping either of these lotions in the ice box. When you use it on your face the heat wave will be gone!

I can tell you about the lotion which is best for your skin type, where you can get it and how much it costs. Just call me at Walnut 6565 or write me in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MY DAY: American Waste Shocks Traveler

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Monday.—Yesterday was a quiet day. A few friends came to lunch. I had a swim, one or two visitors, and dinner at the big house in the evening with my mother-in-law. She is bewailing the fact that her great-grandson, Franklin III, is leaving her today and going up to the house which his mother has taken for the summer at Beverly Farms, Massachusetts.

I noticed an amusing item about this house the other day. Some newspaper said that Franklin Jr. and his wife were going to spend the summer in Beverly and that he would commute to the destroyer to which he is assigned. It made me chuckle, for he would have to commute to some place out in the Atlantic ocean, since the destroyer is now on a 20-day cruise to parts unknown!

All of us have been anxiously waiting for some kind of news from Jimmy. When I called the President yesterday, he quoted the newspaper to me, which was not what I had hoped for in the way of "inside information." It looks as though Jimmy would probably return home after I reach Maine, where some time before July 1 I must go to put our house in order before we turn it over to the International Student Service.

I did a number of errands in New York City today, saw some people who are leaving for the summer, and at 4 o'clock took a plane for Washington.

A letter came to me the other day, some of which I pass on to you. It reads: "Returning from Europe, where I have lived for 40 years in France, traveling often all over the continent, I am shocked by the waste of food on all sides, in this, my native land."

Now that starving Europe is tugging at our heartstrings, now that we may soon be in a position to furnish these poor people with part of what they need, can nothing be done to awaken our people to the crime of wasting food?

I remember after three years of school in England under a French headmistress, returning to this country and being surprised and bewildered then by the waste of food I saw on every hand. The amount of sugar and cream wasted on cereal in the morning, which was often only half eaten!

I remember Mlle. Souvestre's stern eye across the table at school, and the admonition: "You need never take anything on your plate, but when you have taken it, you must finish it." My grandmother used to say when I was a tiny girl that there was an old adage, "Waste not, want not." Then she used to add that as long as there were hungry children in the world, we should be ashamed to leave any food uneaten on our plates.

WILLIAMSON TRIP-LITE FURNACE FURNACES CLEANED AND REPAIRED

Freshness Surpasses Made-up Appearance

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you are a teen-age girl and are still using very bright nail polish or heavy make-up, you're behind the times. Out in Hollywood, the young actresses who set national styles in beauty are going out for the country-fresh brand which suggests sun, wind, and plenty of soap and water.

Helen Parrish, the attractive brunette in "Too Many Blondes," is my authority for this return to natural beauty on the part of the film colony's younger set. When Deanna Durbin married Vaughn Paul, she asked that her bridesmaids—of whom Helen was one—wear no polish on their nails. The bride herself went further and wore no perfume or jewelry.

On her recent trip to New York, Helen's fresh, unabridged beauty created quite a sensation. She uses scarcely enough powder to keep the shine off her perky nose. She doesn't use any rouge on her cheeks, and there's just enough lipstick to keep you guessing whether it might not be natural. Except for a tiny space just above the bridge of her nose, she doesn't tweeze her eyebrows—she used to, and says it made her look half-awake!

Like one or two of the topnotch older stars, Helen has mastered the trick of setting her own hair. She says any girl who wants to appear well groomed and to look her best always should go to work and learn to do her hair. Having watched her in the act, I can tell you she does a professional hair-dressing job. She uses the forefinger of her left hand to hold the lock in place, then winds it about that finger with the right hand. And here's a beauty tip: If you can't wash your hair and you want to look especially good, put in 30 minutes at brushing your hair. You can read a book or listen to the radio at the same time, but keep brushing! Helen says it gives the hair a lovely sheen and is better than a shampoo.

Her other beauty tip is for the tall girls: Stand tall! Stand tall, no matter if your "date" is short. He likes 'em tall, or he wouldn't have asked you to go out with him. Helen says that thanks to a vigilant brother she never stooped, but that she is just beginning to realize how important it is to a girl's appearance to stand up straight.

One of the reasons tall girls stoop is to bring themselves down to the level of the average, which is 5 feet 4 inches, minus. But the girls who make a career of acting or modeling appreciate posture and height too much to slump. Helen is 5 feet 6 1/2 inches without shoes and she towers—gracefully—over the crowd.

The girl of today stands a better chance of conquering if she doesn't stoop. To make the most of your height, follow Ida Jean Kain's tips in "Posture Makes the Figure." Please enclose a stamped return envelope with your request for this leaflet to Miss Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Woman's Quiz

Q. In contract bridge are hands with balanced distribution as likely to produce game as those with unbalanced distribution?

A. Unbalanced distribution will more often produce game at suit contracts. The short suits in such hands afford opportunities for ruffing or discarding losers.

Q. Is the term "pure-dye" applied to unweighted rayon as well as to silk?

A. Yes. Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent stamp and mail to The Woman's Editor of The Constitution, 1013 13th Street, Washington, D. C., for a personal reply. Don't telephone; write as directed.

Casual Frock Suits Summer Activities

By Lillian Mae.

PATTERN 4791.

You'll need a here, there and everywhere frock for the summer casual life—and here it is—in a style by Lillian Mae! Simple as can be to make and to wear, yet Pattern 4791 has a gay, fresh young air about it. Notice the spirited, swinging line of the yoke that curves across the front from shoulder to shoulder—isn't it smart? The wide revers are new and so attractive, especially if you decide to trim them with buttons and buttonholes. Darts below the yoking and gathers above the bodice in place. Even the skirt has unusual flattery in slimming front and back panels. Choose a cool summery fabric—a pique, linen or shantung would be smart.

Pattern 4791 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 33-8 yards 35-inch. Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Reception and Ball Honor Kiwanis International Head

The reception and president's ball of the 25th Kiwanis International convention was given last evening at the Municipal auditorium. Mark A. Smith, of Macon, president of Kiwanis International, and Mrs. Smith led the grand march.

Mrs. Smith, wife of the international president, was crowned in white net with coral trim. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of orchids and an old-fashioned bouquet carrying out the colors of her gown.

Miss Charlotte Sage and her committee of Atlanta girls escorted the officers in the grand march, and they carried roses and carnations. The march concluded with the May day scene, and the girls threw their flowers to the crowd.

The girls on the dance committee served as partners for Kiwanians desiring to dance. The group included Misses Blume Williamson, Ouida Porter, Frances Snow, Betty Reid, Mary Beth Browder, Joe Murphy, Lois Seckinger, Daine Harding, Mildred Grant, Margie Apps, Betty Bowman, Virginia Fain, Olive Bell Davis, Frances Quillian, Aline Gordon, Eva Moorehead, Katherine Moore, Jo Maddox, Aline Lignon, Reba Jay, Gene Hayes, Frances Poole, Ann Williams, Millie Nations, Dot Goodrich, Clarissa Wright and Ruby Crymes.

The colorful ball was attended by thousands of fashionably dressed visitors from all parts of the country. Mrs. Frederick Barnes, of Jersey City, N. J., wore pale blue silk jersey appliqued with embroidered designs; Mrs. Ben Dean, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was crowned in a shirtdress blue jersey dinner dress; Mrs. Fred McAlister, of London, Ont., wore a black and white dinner dress; and Mrs. Roe Fulkerson, of Hollywood, Fla., wore powder blue crepe featuring buttons of brilliants.

A district dinner was held for the Georgia district of Kiwanis International preceding the ball, and given at the Rainbow room of the Ansley hotel with Jimmy Carmichael, of Marietta, district governor, and Mrs. Carmichael, as hosts.

Seated at the speakers' table with Mr. and Mrs. Carmichael were Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. Smith, of Macon, formerly of Thomaston. Mr. Smith, international president, will be the principal speaker for the banquet. Other prominent Georgia Kiwanians attending were Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Scott, of Savannah; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Howell, of Marietta; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kennedy, of Augusta; Mr. and Mrs. George Simpson, of Valdosta; and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Henry, of Atlanta. Special guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Dudley, of Dallas, Tex. Mr. Dudley

McKinney-Hill Nuptial Rites Held at Church

A large gathering of friends and relatives assembled yesterday afternoon at the Rock Springs Presbyterian church for the marriage of Miss Sara Love McKinney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Caleb McKinney, to Francis Marlin Hill, son of Matthew E. Hill and the late Mrs. Hill. Rev. Henry E. Russell read the marriage service at 5:30 o'clock, and Miss Eda E. Bartholomew, organist, presented the music.

The altar and chancel were banked with palms interspersed with baskets of white gladioli. At either side of the chancel steps were placed cathedral candelabra holding lighted white tapers.

Dr. Phil N. Moore served as best man, and escorting the guests to their places were William M. Smith and Dr. J. L. Dobson. Mrs. William M. Smith was her sister's matron of honor and only attendant. She wore a gown of pale pink marquisette trimmed with matching lace. Her leghorn hat was trimmed with blue velvet ribbon and she carried a bouquet of pink roses fringed with blue delphinium.

The pretty young bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an exquisite gown of ivory satin made on princess lines, the long skirt falling into a graceful train. Her veil of ivory tulle was caught to her hair with a pointed coronet of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses centered with a white orchid and showered with white gladioli blossoms.

Mrs. McKinney chose for her daughter's wedding a model of powder blue shadow print, a dark blue hat trimmed in powder blue and a shoulder cluster of pink and lavender sweet peas. Miss Eugenia Hill, sister of the groom, wore a dress of printed sheer trimmed with lace and purple velvet ribbon. Her accessories were black and her flowers were pink roses.

Following the ceremony, the young couple left for their wedding trip. For traveling the bride wore a costume suit of beige and green silk shantung worn with a green hat. A purple-throated orchid pinned to her left shoulder completed the ensemble.

Miss Mary Steed Stipe Weds Mr. Eyles at Emory Chapel

Miss Mary Steed Stipe, lovely young daughter of John Gordon Stipe, became the bride of Don Edgar Eyles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Eyles, at a beautiful ceremony taking place yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the Emory Theological chapel. Dr. R. C. Rhodes officiated in the presence of a representative gathering of friends and relatives.

Goodrich White, pianist, and Chappell White, violinist, presented a program of music. The altar was banked with palms, before which were placed three arrangements of Easter lilies, white larkspur and gladioli. Clusters of similar flowers, tied with white satin bows, were caught to the five cathedral candelabra which held lighted white tapers.

Paul Frazier, of Memphis, Tenn., served as best man, and the ushers-groomsmen were Dr. Howard M. Phillips and John Gordon Stipe Jr., brother of the bride.

Miss Lellita Stipe was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Misses Frances Baker and Eleanor Peebles. They were gowning alike in models of cornflower blue marquisette made with fitted bodices and full-skirts. They carried cascade bouquets of mixed garden flowers in pastel shades and wore matching flowers in their hair.

The pretty bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin fashioned on princess lines, the bodice featuring a yoke of handsome lace and leg-o-mutton sleeves. The eight-gored skirt fell into a graceful train. Her three-tiered veil of bridal illusion fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom, and she carried a handkerchief of linen and Brussels lace belonging to Mrs. W. B. Baker. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of gardenias, roses and swainsona.

Mrs. Lucian A. Whipple, the bride's aunt, of Cochran, wore a model of black and white, the bodice being made of white Irish lace and the skirt of black marquisette being posed over black taffeta. Her white hat was trimmed with black lace and her flowers were sweetheart roses.

Following the ceremony the young couple left for a wedding trip to the mountains of north Georgia and Tennessee. The bride wore for traveling a tailored costume of green and white jersey, with luggage tan and white accessories and a shoulder cluster of gardenias.

The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Whipple, Anne Whipple and Bennett and Fielding Whipple, of Cochran; Dr. and Mrs. B. J. Kaston, Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Mooney and Miss Jacqueline Marshall, of Gainesville; Miss Susan Boneer, of Bainbridge; J. Gordon Stipe Jr., of Princeton, N. J., and Paul Frazier, of Memphis, Tenn.

Miss McDaniel To Be Feted Today by Mrs. Jere Newton

Miss Louise McDaniel, of Baton Rouge, La., is visiting her cousin, Miss Lorraine Newton, at her home on Bolling road, and will provide the inspiration for a series of parties among the schoolgirl set of society. Miss McDaniel formerly resided in Atlanta and has a host of friends here.

Mrs. Jere Newton entertains at a bridge-luncheon today at her Bolling road residence, in compliment to her niece.

Invited to meet Miss McDaniel are Misses Betty Slaton, Mary Ann Patterson, Jeannette Wilcox, Mildred Flowers, Fritzie Yundt, Mary Ann Robison, Alline

Minor, Emily Pruitt, Ann Groves and Kate Holmes. Miss Betty Slaton will be hostess at a badminton party and an all-day picnic Friday as a complimentary gesture to Miss McDaniel. On June 24 Miss Ann Groves gives a badminton party for the popular visitor at her Rumson road home.

On July 1 Miss Newton and Miss McDaniel will depart for Chicago, where they will be met by their grandmother, Mrs. Oscar Newton, of Omaha, Neb., and they will motor through the west for several weeks with their grandmother.

Parties Precede Clarkson-Waitt Wedding Saturday

Among the interesting prenuptial parties planned for Miss Betty Le Clarkson, bride-elect of this week, is the trousseau-tea at which her mother, Mrs. L. M. Clarkson, will entertain today at her home on Maddox drive. Friends of the bride-elect will call between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock.

Miss Clarkson's marriage to Lieutenant Robert Graham Waitt, U. S. A., will be an important social event taking place Saturday. Following the wedding rehearsal on Friday evening, the groom-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Waitt, will entertain at their home on Clebourne terrace. Preceding the wedding on Saturday Mrs. Charles D. Atkinson will be hostess at a breakfast at her home on Peachtree street, her guests to include the wedding party and the out-of-town guests here for the wedding.

Among the guests from a distance who have already arrived for the marriage are the bride's elect's grandmother, Mrs. W. H. Watts, of Arlington, Va.; her aunt, Mrs. T. R. Robertson, of Raleigh, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Waitt and Miss Frances Watts, of Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. C. D. S. Clarkson and Mrs. Merrill Barber, of Highlands, N. C.; Colonel and Mrs. E. A. Nankivell, of Fort Jackson, S. C., will arrive on Friday for the wedding.

KIWANIANS ...

Hudlin, Volpi Keep Atlanta In Bat Slump

Cracker First Baseman Passes Les Fleming in Circuit Drives.

By JACK TROY, Constitution Sports Editor.

Once again it took a home run to break a losing streak for the league-leading Crackers.

Punchless in the pinch in the first game of a twilight double-header with the tail-end Little Rock Travelers, the Crackers were handed a 4-to-1 defeat, stretching their losing streak to three games.

In the nightcap it began to appear as if they would never get as much as one run. They had gone into the seventh, having secured only one hit off Ray Volpi, strapping Traveler right-hander.

Leading off the seventh, Lester Burge clouted the first pitch on a line over the second tier of signs and this represented the margin of victory, 1-0. It was Burge's 22d homer of the season and put him ahead of Les Fleming in the Southern League's four-base Derby.

A stitch in time saves nine and Burge's home run probably represented the difference between a victory and the second straight loss of a double-header.

BATES IN FORM.

However, steady Ed Heusser had about as much stuff as the law allows. He gave up only three hits. And one of them was a double with one out in the ninth. At the start of the inning Buddy Bates made a "super catch" of a low line drive. It didn't seem possible for him to get it. But he made a sensational one-handed catch after a furious run.

Mahan followed with Little Rock's only extra base hit to deep center. Then Heusser caused chalk to pop to Ryan and Resinger to fly to Bates.

Earlier in the game Bates had roused the fine crowd with a brilliant catch and throw to Burge or a double play. It was in the seventh. Tyack singled with one way. Dwyer hit to right-center and Bates made a great running catch and threw perfectly to Burge, doubling Tyack.

HELPS HEUSSER.

All this was helpful to Heusser, who needed all the help he could

U. S. O. Passes Half-Way Mark; $40,000 To Go

Major Scott Urges Every One Who Hasn't Contributed To Give.

Atlanta's United Service Organization appeal for funds to finance community recreation facilities for soldiers and sailors, passed the halfway mark yesterday, according to a summary prepared at campaign headquarters.

Subscriptions and pledges turned in to the auditor since the campaign started aggregate $35,794.

Reports from southern regional headquarters yesterday indicated $15,000 "on hand or in sight."

This area's quota is $90,000. Therefore, it will be necessary to raise nearly $40,000 more if the community is to reach its goal.

Reports from southern regional headquarters yesterday indicated that Memphis, Tenn., had raised $6,000 more than its quota of $51,000, Louisville, Ky., was within $20,000 of its $71,000 goal.

"Atlanta can do equally as well if our citizens will support this campaign 'whole-heartedly' and give as liberally as the people of Memphis and Louisville," Major Trammell Scott, campaign chairman, said.

Some Uncollected. Major Scott pointed out that the "insight" subscriptions represented contributions reported pledged to suburban committees or promised by corporations and groups of employees but not received at headquarters.

He said continued efforts by campaign workers, especially in rounding up subscriptions from firms and individuals "missed on the first call" soon would put Atlanta within striking distance of its goal.

"In spite of our best efforts, workers have missed hundreds of businessmen and employees who appreciate the urgency of the need and want to do their part to maintain the morale of the boys in training camps and naval bases," Major Scott said.

Checks for USO should be made payable to C. M. Floyd, treasurer. Major Scott said the initial and advanced gifts committees had about completed their work. Divisions working the downtown office buildings and the public agencies—federal, state, county and city—delayed in starting their solicitations, have not made their reports.

PROPOSED STORE—Officials of Beck & Gregg Hardware Company yesterday were studying an architect's model of the new $250,000 store and warehouse they are planning to erect on Luckie street, between Hayden and Harris streets. One of Atlanta's six oldest businesses, the concern expects to move from its present location at 64 Marietta street on January 1. Designed by Burge & Stevens, the new structure will be of modern, fireproof architecture and will inclose 150,000 square feet. Ample parking space will be provided store patrons.

Pension Funds Still Missing; State Worried

Checks Overdue, Welfare Officials Turn to Washington.

By LUKE GREENE.

Thousands of aged, crippled and blind in Georgia yesterday wondered why they had not received their June pension checks and a troubled State Department of Public Welfare turned anxiously to Washington for the answer, because the state's June quota of federal funds is long overdue.

The checks were scheduled to go out last Saturday.

Three state welfare officials presumably left for Washington yesterday afternoon for the purpose of conferring with Social Security officials and getting the flow of federal money resumed.

Included in this party were Director B. S. Miller, Assistant Director Max L. McRae and J. A. Boatright, supervisor of merit examinations.

It was believed the old question of a merit system had again clogged the stream. For Governor Talmadge gave specific instructions over the telephone to a welfare official to go to Washington and get the merit system straightened out.

Meanwhile, the situation in Fulton county was becoming critical. Fulton Director T. C. Dickson said approximately 4,500 persons on the public assistance rolls in Fulton county were affected by the hold-up. This number embodies all these types of assistance—old-age, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children.

Other counties in the state were facing a similar crisis.

The month's quota of federal funds is approximately $300,000. Of this amount $278,000 goes for the payment of pensions, and the rest for administration. Since the state and counties match the federal funds, this means that distribution of $556,000 in pension checks is at least temporarily halted.

Whether the state officials would be able to straighten out the difficulties was a matter of speculation. For some time the Social Security Board has been threatening to stop the federal funds to Georgia because of laws in conflict with its regulations. Each month, however, the funds have been coming through in time for the checks to go out on the 15th, the day they are due.

Gallup Poll Reveals: Public Favors Ban on Reds

DR. GEORGE GALLUP.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 17.—Legislation forbidding membership in the Communist party—a step which would be tantamount to outlawing the party—is approved by a majority of approximately 3 to 1 in a nationwide survey of American voters.

Whether such an extreme step in ever taken, of course, may depend on the outcome of current investigations of the Communist party's role in United States defense strikes, the degree to which the party takes its orders from a foreign government, and other factors.

But the survey makes it clear that the average American has little sympathy for the Communist party and its program—though that party has often presented itself as the spokesman of "the people."

Voters in a carefully selected cross-section of the 48 states were asked:

"Do you think membership in the Communist party in this country should be forbidden by law?"

For the nation as a whole the answers were:

Believe Membership Should be Forbidden 71%
Believe Should Not be Forbidden 22%
Undecided 7%

New Draft Registration July 1

Approximately 21,500 Georgians who have turned 21 years of age since October 16, 1940, will be expected to register July 1 at the state's 188 draft boards in the second selective service registration.

Registration is required of all males, state director of selective service, announced yesterday.

The new names will be integrated in the list of 400,000 men already registered, and will increase the total number of registrants by five per cent, General Hawkins said.

Governor Talmadge is expected to issue a proclamation today designating the second registration day in accordance with President Roosevelt's proclamation of May 26.

Local boards, with their clerks, assistant clerks, and members will handle the task of registration, supplemented by outside volunteer help in only a few cases.

Set Up Sub-Offices. Many boards will set up sub-offices, to accept registration in cities and areas of scattered population. Almost all the 17 boards in Fulton and three in DeKalb will have two or more sub-offices.

General Hawkins warned that the act of registration does not mean a man is being selected for military service. It is for informational purposes so that other detail of classification and selection may be speedily worked out, he said.

Information that will be asked, as in the first registration, will include the registrant's full name, place of residence, mailing address, telephone number, age, place of birth and country of citizenship. He will also be asked the name and address of someone who always will know where he can be located, and the name of his employer and place of employment.

Description of Registrant. Description of the registrant, including his race, height and weight, color of hair, eyes and complexion, will also be recorded. Every man will be given a registration card, which according to law, he must carry with him at all times.

A man who spends part of his time in one place and the rest in another will have the right to decide which place he wants recorded as his residence. The place he selects will determine the local board that will always have jurisdiction over him, General Hawkins pointed out.

Exempt from registration are the following:
Men in the regular Army, Navy,

$75 Said Stolen From Dead Man

A report that a billfold containing $75 was stolen from the body of B. B. Baughcum between the time he died of a heart attack in his automobile Sunday night and the arrival of his body at a Lawrenceville undertaking establishment yesterday stirred an investigation by DeKalb county police.

A nephew of the dead man, Charlie Baughcum, said he was present at the time his uncle was stricken on Fellowship road, but was unable to learn how the money was lost.

Funeral services for the 45-year-old World War veteran were held from Pleasant Hill church at Tucker yesterday morning. Burial was in the churchyard.

Sterchi Store To Make Large Building Outlay

Remodeling of Front, Interior Will Cost $60,000.

Something like $60,000 is to be spent in remodeling and modernizing the entire front and much of the interior of the building occupied by Sterchi Brothers Stores, Inc., Nos. 116-118-120 Whitehall street, according to announcement made yesterday by W. M. Hicks, vice president of Sterchi Stores, and manager of the Atlanta house.

Work was started yesterday on the improvement, and it will take two to three months to complete the job. In the meantime the store will remain open every day to serve the trade.

Sterchi Stores has just renewed a 10-year lease on the structure, which is the north half of the old Chamberlin - Johnson building, comprising six large floors, with 75 feet frontage on Whitehall. The furniture concern is making the improvements on its own account, and Mr. Hicks declares when it is completed they will have one of the most attractive furniture houses in the entire south.

The entire front is to be covered with white Georgia marble up to and including the fifth story. In the center a portion of the marble will be pink in color, with three large marquees featuring the entrance. A beautiful and spacious lobby, surrounded by 12 roomy show windows, in which full suites of furniture can be shown, will be one of the attractive features of the modernization.

In addition several large columns, with hidden lighting effects in changeable colors will be erected near the entrance. There will also be considerable remodeling and rearranging of displays on all floors of the building.

Mr. Hicks, who has been a resident of Atlanta for 23 years, said he is pleased that the plans call for Georgia marble throughout. The Tri-State Construction Company, local contractors, has been awarded the contract for the work.

Bill To Curb Subversive Radio Operators Offered

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP)—Legislation to give the Federal Communications Commission broad authority to weed out subversive elements among radio operators in the Merchant Marine was introduced today by Chairman Bland, Democrat, Virginia, of the house Merchant Marine Committee.

The bill was unanimously approved earlier in the day by a subcommittee which had been studying the question for several months.

The bill would permit the commission to revoke the license of any radio-marine operator, or deny a license to any applicant, when it finds after its own investigation or through any other federal agency that "there is reasonable probability that such person is a subversive individual." Present law limits the commission's discretion to the applicant's technical qualifications.

Limited Service Seen For National Guard

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP)—Voicing doubt that National Guard troops would be retained more than a year on active duty, President Roosevelt said today that the matter was under study and that Secretary Stimson had told him yesterday he would have a report on it soon.

To a press conference question whether the Guardsmen might be kept in service longer than a year, he replied that he did not think so.

Stimson Begins $285,000,000 Seaway Drive

Congressional Approval Sought on Proposed St. Lawrence Project.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP)—With a warning that the war may last for years, Secretary Stimson today began an administration drive to obtain congressional approval of the $285,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway and power project as a measure important to national defense.

The secretary of war appeared before the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, which is considering the administration proposal. He said the huge undertaking would be important in a military sense because (1) it would provide a more protected route part of the way for the transportation of supplies to England and (2) it would increase the amount of electric power available to operate arms industries.

Proposal Made For Hospital Authority Here

Lease of City's Medical Facilities Urged by LeCraw.

Lease of all the city's hospital facilities to the proposed metropolitan hospital authority authorized by voters of Georgia was proposed yesterday by Mayor LeCraw at a preliminary discussion of plans for making the program effective.

Under the plan a hospital authority composed of nine members would be selected to build a new Grady hospital and a new Battle Hill tuberculosis sanatorium and to establish clinics in Fulton and DeKalb counties.

The initial session was held in the office of Thomas K. Glenn, chairman of the Grady hospital board of trustees, which also administers Battle Hill and the Albert Steiner Cancer clinic.

LeCraw pointed out that 63 per cent of the population of the metropolitan district lie within the city limits of Atlanta and 18.9 in Fulton county, 3.5 per cent in DeKalb and 14.8 in DeKalb county. He held that by reason of the large population, Atlanta is entitled to at least a majority representation on the governing board.

In addition to the mayor and Glenn, Troy G. Chastain, chairman of the Fulton county commission; Scott Candler, DeKalb county commissioner and attorneys representing both counties attended the discussions. All those present urged early formation of plans for making the plan effective at the earliest possible moment.
